Hancock board member resigns Bay teaching post

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County School Board Member Barbara Dedeaux has resigned a teaching position with the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

Dedeaux, whose specialty area is special education, had been working at North Bay Elementary School.

Her letter of resignation was submitted to the Bay-Waveland board at a special meeting Tuesday and was accepted unanimously.

In the letter, she stated that she had been offered a better educational career opportunity and that she also felt a proposed consolidation of the Bay-Waveland and Hancock special education programs could create a conflict of interest for her as a board member.

Bay-Waveland Superintendent of Education Roger Oge had stated during a July meeting that the two districts were considering merging some of the administrative functions involved in special education as a method of saving money.

The tentative plans for the administrative merger would not affect where students participating in special education classes in either district would attend school.

Also at the special meeting, the board agreed to hire five additional teachers, including Elizabeth Holleman, North Bay Elementary School; John Andrew Loup, industrial arts, Bay Junior High School; Tonya Perniciaro, kindergarten, North Bay; Patricia Sager, physical education, North Bay and Waveland elementary schools; and Donna Stickland, kindergarten, Waveland.

The board also agreed to obtain emergency certification for Holleman, who has an expired certificate, and Loup, who meets all certification requirements but had not yet received certification, Assistant Superintendent of Education Robert Magee said.

The board's next regular meeting is scheduled for Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High School.

SCHOOL SAFETY—Bay St. Louis city workers Morvan Washington, left, and Ernie Poillion paint school crossings on Necaise Avenue at the St. Rose de Lima which serves as the Fifth Grade Center and a Head Start Center in preparation for the beginning of the school year. All school street crossings throughout the city were painted, according to Norbert Redmond, director of the department of public works. Redmond also said new speed limit signs were being installed and overhead foliage near the schools is being trimmed so motorists will have a better view of walking students. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Volunteers needed for battered women crisis line

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Volunteers are needed to man the 24-hour Crisis Line for the Gulf Coast Women's Center, a shelter for rape victims, battered wives and their children.

There are currently only two volunteers from Hancock County working with the women's center but 17 percent of the women who stay in the shelter are from Hancock County, according to Barbara Cropp, domestic violence outreach coordinator.

"We really need some volunteers who can be on call to assist victims in the Hancock County area," Cropp said.

Volunteers may be a man or woman over the age of 21-years-old. A husband and wife team would really be good because many times they are both needed in times of crisis, she said.

"Sometimes dealing with both the victim and the family members can be a bit too much for one person," added Roselyn Dennis, Gulf Coast Women's Center rape and sexual assault counselor.

"The main requirement for a volunteer is to have concern and a willingness to help people," she said.

A two-day training session is scheduled for volunteers in September. This training is required for volunteers and is given periodically.

This session is usually scheduled on two consecutive Saturdays and is conducted at the shelter in Biloxi.

Monthly training is available to teach volunteers to handle rape trauma.

Anyone wishing to become a volunteer should call 435-1968.

This call is to Biloxi and people may call collect, Cropp said.

Currently there are 41 women and children staying at the seven-room center. In addition to the kitchen, living room, washroom and two bathrooms, there are two large bedrooms which are shared by the residents.

"Basically the center is a safe place for women and children to rethink their problems and get support from others in similar circumstances," Cropp said.

Counseling is available at the center which is staffed 24-hours a day by shelter aides.

A children's activities director and a pre-school teacher work with the children in the center.

"Residents at the center can stay overnight or for a month, depending on the need and the improvement in the woman's situation," she added.

As many as 650 women and children have stayed in the center during a year, according to Cropp.

The center is a non-profit agency funded by county, city and state governments, private donations and the United Way.

Both Cropp and Dennis also work with area law enforcement agencies, conducting in-service training for officers on how to deal with victims.

"We try and teach officers to understand why so many battered wives are repeat victims and how to deal with rape trauma when the reaction can be very different from what is expected," Dennis added.

Cropp also presents community education programs.

"Violence in the family will not stop until the people within the community accept it as a crime and make efforts to stop this," she said.

Families have always been perceived as private and people believe you shouldn't interfere," Cropp said.

"But domestic violence can affect the community as a whole because it is reflected in children of the family and can cause problems in their school work and behavior," she added.

Children are affected by domestic violence at an early age and tend to imitate the behavior of their parents, either becoming a victim or an abuser, Cropp said.

Any organization interested in having a presentation on domestic violence is asked to contact Cropp.

In addition to presentations and training in Hancock County, Cropp also can provide counseling for individuals through an office in the Hancock County Youth Court building.

To make an appointment call collect 9-435-1968 and ask for Cropp.

Anyone needing to talk to a counselor may also call this number.

Work underway to resolve drainage problems in Hancock Heights

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Bay St. Louis city officials say drainage work in the Hancock Heights subdivision area should begin soon.

Bay Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. told a group of residents from Hancock Heights he would inform them in about two weeks on the status of engineering in the project which should be completed at that time.

The group presented a petition signed by nearly 50 area residents at the city council's meeting Tuesday requesting action on the drainage problems in the area which includes Pine Street, Arcola Cove, Corinth Street and Jackson Boulevard.

"The problem has gotten progressively worse and is dangerous to the children who live in this area, not to mention, the potential threat it presents during a hurricane," according to the petition.

Residents reported to city officials flooding problems following recent rainfalls which prevented the people from leaving their houses and continuing erosion of drainage ditches.

The group says in the petition they realize this area is a low-lying area, located in a flood-zone but "the problem lies in the fact that the water which build up from rain does not drain effectively."

The petition also states the problem has drastically worsened in the past couple of years.

Following significant rainfall Arcola Cove is impassable, taking more than 10 hours to drain, and the intersection of Corinth Drive and Jackson Boulevard takes five to six hours to drive, the petition states.

"The thing that is so upsetting to us is that these conditions have not always existed and there is something causing this drainage problem that could and should be corrected," the petition stated.

Frankiewicz says there are two alternatives, drain the subdivision northward crossing Pine Street or drain southward like the drainage is supposed to work now.

"Both alternative will require most area culverts be dug up and replaced because they are either set at the wrong elevation or are too small," he said.

Replacement of street culverts crossings will also be required in the redesign, he added.

Frankiewicz said first the engineering work must be completed and crews which will do the work must finish a project in the Suebe Street area.

Both the engineering work and the Suebe Street area project are expected to be finished within two weeks, he added.

Within the next four weeks Frankiewicz plans to meet again with area residents and let them know how the project is proceeding.

He said work could also begin within this time period.

Frankiewicz expects the work to take less than a month to complete.

Project costs are expected to be between $10,000 and $20,000.

However $8,500 of this amount is being funded by county funds which were transferred to this project by Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner last year.

Frankiewicz said the funds provided by Ladner will probably pay for much of the project.

Councilman Lisa Coward, whose district the subdivision is located in, says she is especially glad to see "light at the end of the tunnel" in resolving this problem.

"This is a problem I have been working to get resolved since the beginning of my term in office," she added.

Mock train derailment scheduled to test disaster preparedness

BY DENA BISNETTE

A train derailment will be staged in Hancock County next week in order to test the preparedness of Civil Defense, Hancock Medical Center and other emergency services.

Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin said the date of the mock disaster is not being released because he does not want emergency services to have advance notice.

"We want them staffed as they would be on any other day. We don't want a lot of extra people on for this drill because they wouldn't be able to do that in a real disaster," the civil defense director said.

Plans for the emergency drill have been discussed with the heads of various departments and agencies involved, who will meet later to discuss the performance of their personnel and discuss any areas needing improvement.

The drill will center around a train derailment somewhere in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area, Boudin added.

For the purposes of the drill, sections of railroad track and streets that are supposed to be blocked by the accident will be closed to fire trucks, ambulances, law enforcement vehicles and other emergency personnel who would be unable to get through during an actual disaster.

However, ordinary traffic will be allowed to continue, Boudin said. He added that members of the Retired Senior Volunteers Program will play the parts of accident victims.

In life insurance

Single-premium policy becomes attractive again

Life insurance is sometimes like fashion—what's out of style eventually comes back in style.

Single-premium life insurance policies have recently regained the attention of insurance companies and consumers due to their tax-advantaged status, competitive interest rates, and low-cost policy loans, according to Beverly Riggs, a family economics specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"The owner of a single premium life insurance (SPLI) policy, is required to make a lump sum payment. Under the terms of most policies, there are no further payments," Riggs said. "Most of the premium goes toward earning interest rather than buying insurance protection. The premium immediately starts earning interest and building cash value."

There are several advantages of single premium life insurance policies:

- (1) the earnings are allowed to accumulate on a tax-deferred basis;
- (2) the policy owner can borrow against the cash value without triggering a tax bill;
- (3) loans against the cash value of a policy are favorable;
- (4) a minimum death benefit is guaranteed; and
- (5) the funds borrowed from a SPLI policy are not included in the calculations that determine whether Social Security benefits are taxable.

Riggs said the main disadvantages are the large original premium and that the original premium is locked into the policy. To get the initial premium back, the policy holder must either surrender the policy or pay interest to borrow his own money.

Upon surrendering the policy, income taxes will have to be paid on all the money that has been earned "inside the policy." Also, the insurer will charge a penalty for the early surrender of a policy. Most policies have a decreasing surrender charge, usually over an eight-year period.

There are two types of single premium life insurance policies: whole life and variable life. With the whole life policy, the insurance company selects the underlying investments.

The interest rate, which is set by the company, is guaranteed for a specified period of time—usually from one to five years—and is adjusted periodically. Most policies guarantee a minimum rate that ranges between 4 percent to 6 percent. The principal amount of the policy is guaranteed.

"With the single premium variable life insurance policy, there is no guaranteed interest rate," she said. "The death benefit is guaranteed but the cash value will fluctuate with the performance of the investments."

It is the policy owner who directs how the premiums will be invested—whether the premium will be invested in a stock, bond and/or money market fund. Fees and commission charges tend to be higher with the SPLI variable policy.

When purchasing SPLI, Riggs said it is important to compare policies, as they are not all alike or equal. The comparison should include:

The interest rate—the net rate of return, how long it is effective, the method of determining the rate, and the minimum guaranteed rate.

The provisions for borrowing from a policy—the interest charge, the maximum amount that can be borrowed, and the loan processing fees.

The charges for early surrender of a policy—some contracts offer policy owners a free look or a bailout plan through which a policy can be cashed without penalty if the interest rate falls below the initial rate.

The cash value and death benefit—the treatment of the death benefit can vary between policies.

Sept. 4 qualifying deadline nears for school board hopefuls

BY DENA BISNETTE

People who wish to qualify for a special election for the Beat Three, Hancock County School Board seat have until Sept. 4.

The seat was vacated by the resignation of Tommy Shaw and has been filled in the interim by an appointed member, Wayne King.

According to Hancock County Election Commission Secretary Charles Gottschalk, a special election has been set for Nov. 3, with a run-off two weeks later if one is needed.

King will serve until the first Monday of January, when the winner of the election will take office.

Gottschalk said Wednesday that two people had picked up qualifying petitions but that no one has actually qualified.

"We usually have six or eight candidates in a county school board race," he commented.

Under a state law, the special election must be held in November.

Another statute, Section 37-5-9 of the Mississippi Code, fixes the qualifying deadline at "not more than 90 days and not less than 60 days prior to the date of such general election" and says that a qualifying petition must be signed by "not less than fifty qualified electors of the county residing within each supervisors district."

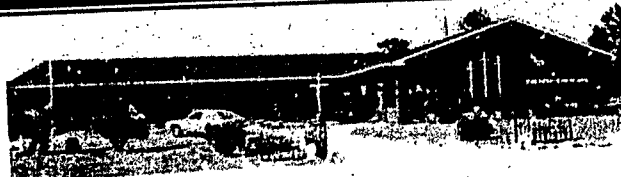

"We usually advise them to get more than 50, say 75, in case some of the signatures are not acceptable," the election commissioner said.

Cases where a signature is unacceptable vary, but a name may be eliminated if a signer is not registered, if one person signed for two people or if the signer does not live in the right district.

Gottschalk said Hancock County is operating its elections under a court order, which stipulates that the signers of a candidate's qualifying petition reside in the district that candidate is representing. Qualifying petitions may be picked up in the circuit clerk's office in the Hancock County courthouse.

Wastewater district sets easement deadline

BY DENA BISNETTE
An unofficial deadline of Sept. 15 has been set by Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District for obtaining sewerage easements in Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1.

According to regional wastewater district attorney Lucien Gex, the district has left five days for processing easements and plans to initiate eminent domain procedures on the remaining easements. The easements are needed for the installation of a three-foot well, grinder pump, pipeline and accompanying equipment at each home to be served by the first phase of a sewage collection system for the county wastewater district. The system is the fourth segment of a four-part wastewater treatment improvement project, partially funded by federal and state funds, that will eventually link the sewerage systems in Bay St. Louis and Waveland with an improved version of the existing Waveland treatment plant as primary treatment facility, as well as build the first publicly owned sewerage collection system in the unincorporated part of Hancock County. Gex said the first group of homeowners to grant easements will fall under a federal funding program and will not have to pay an installation charge. However, property owners will pay a monthly user charge as well as the cost of any electrical hook-ups and in-house plumbing needed to adapt their homes to the new system. More information about the easements can be obtained by contacting the Waveland wastewater treatment plant at 467-3702.

Visiting hours changed at jail

BY DENA BISNETTE
Visiting days at the Hancock County Jail have been changed. Warden Jim Odom said Wednesday visiting hours have been discontinued but the public will now be allowed to visit on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Visits can be arranged by telephoning the sheriff's department at 467-5101. Callers should call between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and ask to speak with a jailer, Odom said.

Contact visits must be authorized with the warden in advance and are permitted for trusty prisoners only. A maximum of three people may visit a prisoner at one time and children are permitted, the warden added. Visitors may not bring food to prisoners but may bring cigarettes and money, which may be used to purchase snacks and drinks from an inmate-run commissary. Money should be in change, such as quarters, because the jail can not provide change for large bills such as $20, Odom explained. Visitors may bring underwear to prisoners but should not bring other types of clothing. Odom said he had been receiving complaints from people unable to visit the jail on Wednesday and felt that Saturday visiting hours would be more convenient for the public. In addition, the combination of visitor traffic and regular sheriff's department business during the week was causing congestion in the jail parking lot and the court street area.

Preferences, needs, budget decide housing

By Dr. Frances Graham
Housing Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Choosing a place to call home depends upon personal and family needs, individual preferences and family financial resources. These factors also help determine whether to rent or buy.

Current housing needs may be influenced by the size of the household and how old the family is. Other influences include whether the family's main wage earner has a job and the likelihood of keeping that job or having some other change in income.

Few housing situations satisfy every need perfectly. Seldom does the same housing situation satisfy the needs of an individual, couple, or family throughout their lives.

Perhaps the most important aspect of determining housing needs is the willingness to objectively reassess those needs as members of the family move from one stage of the life cycle to another.

As housing needs are evaluated, remember that cost of operating and maintaining a house is rising. Estimate space needs carefully. Select housing that will realistically meet family needs, but be no larger than necessary.

The things a family values also will cause members to select certain characteristics for a home.

These characteristics may include location, comfort, beauty, convenience, prestige, privacy, safety and security, easy care and "peace and quiet."

It is important to assess the intangibles of housing that affect family lifestyles and goals.

Another step in selecting satisfactory housing is to consider the design and layout. A family may find a house, apartment or mobile home in an ideal location, but if the design and floor plan of the dwelling did not meet housing values and needs, the family can become dissatisfied with the choice.

Family members should consider the traffic patterns in any dwelling being evaluated. The traffic flow should be direct, convenient and logical. It also should not interrupt family activities or inhibit privacy.

Determine what living, sleeping and working areas are necessary. When doing this the family will come to realize that there is a direct relationship between one room to another such as the kitchen and dining areas. These two areas should always be adjacent.

Bedrooms should be separate from noisy living areas. The physical arrangements can encourage some patterns of behavior and discourage others. The overall design of the home should allow room for expressing an individual's identity.

In evaluating the exterior design, consider simplicity, patterns and texture as well as balance. A building's shape, pattern and form increases its individuality. Landscaping also can greatly improve uninteresting buildings.

Location of a home plays an important satisfaction role with the family. The neighborhood may add or subtract from the home's value and it provides friends and services. Also consider the location in relation to work, stores, schools, churches and other important places.

Cost is another major factor influencing the choice of a home. Once a family establishes values and needs, it is essential to review the monthly budget to find out how much a family can afford to spend for housing.

When a budget amount for housing is settled, stay within that price range. Looks at housing tempts many families to go beyond the budget. This forces excessive trimming of other daily expenses and is the housing market trap. A firm resolve not to over extend the budget is essential. Flexibility with housing desires and needs is possible. The budget often offers less flexibility.

Armed robbery suspect remains at large

BY DENA BISNETTE

An armed robbery suspect who left the owner of the Paddlewheel Restaurant and Motel tied up in a storage room Tuesday morning is still at large.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Delbert Seay, authorities know the identity of the suspect and believe he is no longer in Hancock County.

Seay said warrants have been issued and the suspect's name and description has been placed on the National Crime Information Center, a computer network used by law enforcement officers all over the country.

"We feel the suspect fled this area the night of the robbery," the investigator said.

Seay added that the suspect approached Paddlewheel owner Bruce McMahon and pulled a gun on him, escorted McMahon to a storage area and tied him with extension cords.

The suspect then apparently took money from McMahon's billfold as well as the day's business receipts, presently believed to total about $1,000, and left the scene.

The investigation is continuing with Seay in charge.

Since our comments on the numerous numbers of one-headlight vehicles on Highway 603 in Sunday's issue we have receive several comments from readers.

The most common being Highway 603 is not the only roadway used by one-headlight drivers.

We are aware of the fact that Highway 603 is not the only road used by one-headlight vehicles.

The one thing we are hoping for is the elimination of one-headlight vehicles using all of our roadways.

On Sunday, members of St. Clare's Parish are sponsoring a chicken dinner with proceeds going to kids activities.

The dinner will be at the Parish Hall on Beach Boulevard, Waveland from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This may be a good way for mothers to get away from having to cook dinner on Sunday.

Take-out orders will be available and even free delivery in the Bay-Waveland area for two or more dinners. The telephone number is 467-3553.

Early risers do not want to forget the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Coffee at 7:30 a.m. at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club this morning.

The program is supposed to be very interesting according to Libby Milner, chamber executive director.

We hope to see you there.

This is just a reminder that some schools are already open with others doing so in a few days, and we would like to remind motorists to drive extremely carefully in school zones.

Those traveling through school zones may want to leave a bit earlier due to the reduced speed limits.

We want all students to have an accident-free school year.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

Congress Inquisition

There are things about the Iran-Contra issue which I cannot comfortably defend. While there are explanations for the sale of arms to Iran, I still find it a hard process to justify.

I support aid to the Contras in Nicaragua and feel very strongly that we must help the Democratic Resistance fight communism anywhere in the world, but particularly in the Western Hemisphere.

I do understand that there is disagreement on this issue, and I agree that peace initiatives should be pursued and that diplomacy must be our principal objective.

I also recognize that questions have been raised about the legality of some of the actions taken in transferring funds to the Contras. I think it is debatable that any laws were broken, but Congress does have a responsibility to pursue such questions.

The responsibility to pursue questions of legality, however, does not justify the kind of inquisition we witnessed last week during the Iran-Contra hearings.

The two legal counsels for the Iran Select Committee, John W. Nields Jr., and Arthur Liman—not Members of Congress—tied up almost all of last week with their cross-examinations which often involved asking some questions 17 different ways.

The whole forum is a sad commentary on the way we do business in the Congress.

Lt. Col. Oliver North acknowledges he made mistakes, but there were many things he said last week which left lumps in my throat—as a Congressman, a family man and a citizen.

Congress would do well to stop nit-picking the issue, get back to the basic questions in the Iran-Contra issue and take actions if warranted.

But finally, it should move on to the other urgent issues at hand, such as the federal deficit, arms control and a responsible foreign policy.

JACKSON—This could be called "The Courtship of Jack Reed," or "How the Mississippi Republican Party Plans to Elect its First Governor Since Reconstruction."

Now that Reed, the 63-year-old businessman and industrialist from Tupelo, has the GOP gubernatorial nomination safely tucked away after a ridiculously low-vote primary that could have been troublesome, but wasn't, the genesis of Reed's candidacy is significant.

Ever since the state's Republicans began to field candidates for governor 25 years ago, the Democrats have contended that a small group of well-heeled Republicans in Jackson have hand-picked the party's standard-bearer.

In the case of Reed, that is certainly not true. Reed, who has been identified for a quarter century as one of the state's leading racial moderates, is far too progressive for the GOP hard-core.

Actually, the Republican old guard was much better satisfied with someone like Leon Bramlett, the 1983 GOP candidate, a staunchly conservative Delta plantation owner and cotton gin operator, and a known segregationist from years past.

The recruitment of Reed to run for governor under the Republican banner started four years ago. Lanny Griffith, a Mississippian then working for the Republican National Committee, and now heading up the campaign for Vice-President George Bush in the South, had urged Reed to run before Bramlett became a candidate.

Two years ago, State Republican Chairman Ebbie Spivey began aggressively courting Reed as a gubernatorial candidate, without getting any commitment.

Reed became more interested when a Robert Teeter poll paid for by the national party in July, 1986 showed while it would be uphill it was possible for him to win.

The very thorough Reed, a keen admirer of Tennessee's progressive then Gov. Lamar Alexander, conferred with Alexander to find out if a Republican governor could work successfully with a Democratic Legislature. Alexander convinced Reed party difference had caused him no problems.

But the real clincher in making up Reed's mind to offer for governor came from the support he got from his own neighbors and friends of all political persuasions in Lee County and Northeast Mississippi. When they rallied around and committed $270,000 last Jan. 29, he was off and running.

Interestingly, last fall, when there was some doubt if Reed would run as a Democrat, or an independent or a Republican, Mike Sturdivant told Reed he would not get into the Democratic race if Reed would run as a democrat.

Now, it's possible that Reed will face Sturdivant in the November general election, but the Reed forces believe it is more likely that State Auditor Ray Mabius will be the opponent.

From the beginning, the strategy of the Reed backers has been to get him one-on-one with any Democrat and when voters have over two months to compare qualifications they will give Reed the edge.

For three decades Reed has built a reputation as an outstanding civic and business leader and humanitarian who has worked in the trenches for economic development, public education and racial moderation.

I recall back in 1963 when Reed became president of the Mississippi Economic Council, several lawmakers got up and walked out when Reed said public schools must be preserved in the event of integration. That year, he went all over the state giving the same message.

Again, in 1970 when massive integration of public schools was ordered by the federal court, Reed was one of the few clear voices in the statewide business community who called for peaceful compliance and keeping children in the public schools.

Whether or not his role as an early advocate for civil rights will make his candidacy more acceptable in the traditionally strong Democratic black community is one of the keys to the possible success of his campaign.

"We are going to make a strong bid for the black vote," Reed says. His goal is to get better than the 12 per cent of the black vote Sen. Thad Cochran drew in his 1984 race with former Gov. William Winter.

Reed says he is encouraged by the remarks last week by the Rev. Joseph Lowery, of Atlanta, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, urging blacks not to vote along party lines, but for those who can help them economically.

The black religious leader, Reed proudly points out, was invited by him to speak to his Methodist church in Tupelo in the early 1970's.

Among whites, Reed figures on attracting thousands of non-rural, ticket-splitters in Mississippi like those who voted for Winter in 1979, but turned around and voted for Thad Cochran against Winter in 1984.

Several things are automatically going for Reed that will make him a formidable candidate in November. He is a good speaker and while never having run for public office before, he has a knack for the political arena.

And he will enjoy a "favorite son" status in Northeast Mississippi, perhaps the strongest white Democratic area of the state.

Special interest parking essential to retail business

Aug. 17, 1987

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the letter in last Thursday's Echo from "truly baffled," Mrs. Joe Pilet, concerning the parking signs in front of my building and residence at 200 North Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. Pilet was upset by the presence of two signs reserving two parking spaces in front of my building for the use of customers of the gift shop and package store from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m.

This consideration was granted by the Bay City Council so that my tenants would be able to operate after the Dock of the Bay, across the street, starts filling up.

The night club has the entire North Beach and intersecting streets for its patrons to park on when necessary. If these two spaces had not been reserved for my building, the night club would have caused these spaces to have been occupied by patrons who can easily find parking elsewhere.

Retail stores, such as my two tenants can not survive without adjacent parking. No other business operates on Beach Blvd. on my side of Main Street, except the Dock of the Bay, after 5:30 p.m., making the parking problem unique to my building, and one which certainly merited the consideration given it by the City Council.

The city maintains off-street parking lots for the businesses South of Main Street, on the beach, none of which are retail shops open after 5 p.m.

My friend and business neighbor, Jerry Fisher who owns the Dock, and my other business neighbors have never in seven years had a problem with my spaces because they know what the signs say, while Mrs. Pilet has a problem because she failed to read the signs correctly.

As to "affronting" taxpayers, I am sure many Bay residents remember 200 North Beach being a boarded up, derelict, eyesore before I devoted considerable sweat and resources to making it productive for me and the community. It was returned to the tax rolls after being owned by the Jay Cees and tax exempt for more than a decade.

Mrs. Pilet is a good writer, usually, in her other Echo contributions. But, in this instance, she failed to check her facts because of her failure to correctly read the signs.

She really ought to have a little compassion for the folks who trade at 200 North Beach, because of its convenience, and those who don't mind paying sales taxes to support their city.

Please pardon the length of this letter. Mrs. Pilet's erroneous statements could be corrected with no shorter one.

Sincerely
Maurice Colly, taxpayer

Tips for Summer Heat

Mississippi summers are known for extremes in temperature and humidity. The Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation (MDET) as a consumer service offers tips for beating summer heat concerns.

Those people who appear to be at most risk to the heat and high humidity of Mississippi summers are the elderly, people with heart conditions and infants.

Although most people can tolerate such extremes, those conditions, heat stroke is more severe. The body temperature zooms up because it is unable to cool itself.

MDET advises taking precaution during extreme temperatures. The following information was compiled from annual journals of the American Medical Association (AMA):

Precaution & Concern
An untreated victim of heat exhaustion can experience heat stroke. Persons who have previously experienced heat stroke or heat exhaustion should take special precautions because they may be more susceptible to reoccurring problems.

Dehydration is another concern for people exposed to extreme heat. This happens when the body is without adequate water to support the vital functions. With dehydration, the blood volume decreases, sweating may stop, and the body temperature may rise. If the condition continues, it may progress into heat exhaustion.

Another health precaution is to avoid exercising or working when the thermometer reaches 90° F. and the humidity of 80% or higher in the sun. People who must work outside in extreme heat are advised to drink additional water, rest frequently in the shade, and wear lightweight, loose-fitting clothing including a hat as a sun screen.

Probably, the most important aspect of surviving the summer heat is to drink plenty of liquids. And, remember the body must have enough water if it is to function properly in the stress of extreme heat. If you notice that you are perspiring, your body is telling you it needs additional water!!!

MDET also makes available energy and health related material to the public free of charge. Summer features include "What Everyone Should Know About Heat Stroke, Heat Exhaustion and Heat Cramps" and "About Heat Stress."

For more information call MDET's Energy Answerline today...toll free at 1-800-222-9311...in Jackson, 961-4733.

Early Trooper retirements opened way for hiring

BY EDGAR H. PEREZ

The retirement of 128 officers from the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol in June of 1986 substantially reduced the ranks of the agency's 500 sworn officer complement.

By July 1, 1986, coupled with 30 vacancies that already existed in the uniformed division, the agency began functioning with only 75 percent of its potential manpower.

An unforeseen result of the mass retirement, one that has turned out to be very positive and beneficial for many of the agency's personnel, is that opportunities for promotions became available to the men and women who were not eligible or chose not to retire.

Additionally, since the vacancy rate was so high, the way was paved for the agency to recruit, hire, train and commission new troopers.

Based on salary levels, three new troopers could be hired for less money than what two veteran officers eligible for retirement were earning.

The early retirement option, made available by legislative enactment, eliminated the need for the agency to terminate 150 officers with less than five years Highway Patrol service.

Termination of the rookie officers was a possibility faced by the agency in order to survive the five percent across-the-board, mid-year budget cut recommended by the Fiscal Management Board.

"The past year within the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol has been one of history-making change, significantly affecting the lives of our personnel," according to James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety.

"Never in the history of this agency have so many positions been available for our people to compete for."

Among the newly-promoted officers are Robert G. Underwood, 36 of Waveland; Curtis L. Newman, 44 and James R. Collins, both of Pass Christian; and Joseph F. Gazzo II of Biloxi.

Graduates of Cadet Class 44 who were commissioned as troopers in April include Bobby G. Grice Jr. of Pass Christian who is assigned to the Bay St. Louis area.

Underwood has been promoted to the position of executive officer of the six-county Gulfport District.

His new position carries the rank of lieutenant and he assists the troop commander/captain in the administrative details of the district.

Underwood, a 15-year veteran, served as an enforcement trooper in Poyune, assistant training officer at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy in Pearl, enforcement trooper, drivers license examiner and motor vehicle inspection officer in Gulfport and Hancock County and district investigator in the Gulfport district before laterally transferring into his new position.

Underwood graduated from Gulfport High School and earned a bachelor's degree in law enforcement from Northeast Louisiana University.

He is an FBI National Academy graduate and obtained training as a law enforcement officers instructor from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

He has received specialized training in VIP protection, scuba diving, and bomb disposal.

The newly selected lieutenant is the son of Mrs. Francis Underwood and the late Mr. R. S. Underwood of Gulfport. He is married to the former Darlene Lott, daughter of Mrs. Ida McCoy of New Augusta. Underwood and his wife have two children, Sarah and Jessica. Mrs. (Darlene) Underwood is the Hancock County Extension home economist.

Newman has been promoted to the position of assistant inspector of the Gulfport District.

His new position carries the rank of master sergeant, a first-line supervisor who assists the troop commander in the efficient operation of his district.

Newman was commissioned as a Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol trooper in 1968. He was a drivers license examiner in Hattiesburg and an enforcement trooper in the Poplarville, Gulfport and Bay St. Louis areas before assuming his new position.

Newman is a graduate of Gulfport High School and has served in the Air National Guard.

He is the son of Mrs. W.E. Newman Sr. of Gulfport and the late Mr. Newman.

His wife is the former Joane Williams, daughter of Mr. Hubert Williams Sr. of Gulfport.

Newman and his wife have two children, Curtis and Angela.

Collins has been named a master sergeant and Gazzo a staff sergeant.

Asian roaches pose no problems

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Asian cockroaches have not been found in Mississippi yet, but they could be brought in by vacationers.

If these cockroaches arrive in the state, they won't pose an immediate health problem nor will they attack people, contrary to misinformation being spread about them.

Asian cockroaches are just misunderstood, according to Dr. James Jarratt, an entomologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension service. They do fly, however, and that's why they've been labeled "aggressive."

"The roach's intent is not to attack you," Jarratt said. "Its intent is to reach light."

The Asian cockroach, one of numerous species of cockroaches, is attracted to light sources and light-colored surfaces. Its strong wings enable the roach to fly toward light. Human beings sometimes get in the way of the intended light and are bumped by in-flight roach.

"It's not an aggressive insect but it will fly over or around you to get to that light," Jarratt said.

Native to much of Asia, the Asian cockroach was discovered in Tampa and other areas in Florida by a Japanese entomologist in 1986. It can survive in subtropic to temperate climates, meaning that the roach could adapt to a new home in America.

To date, Asian cockroaches have not been found in Mississippi or any of the other southeastern states, with the exception of Florida. And in Florida, the Asian cockroaches are not that plentiful.

"I haven't heard that many comments from Florida, such as 'I can't walk out in the yard' or 'We've been inundated with these things,'" Jarratt said.

Asian cockroaches could be spread to Mississippi and other southern states by Mississippians vacationing in Florida or out-of-state travelers coming in for a vacation.

"They can get into a picnic hamper or a car hitchhike their way back to Mississippi," Jarratt said.

Individuals who think they have spotted Asian cockroaches may easily confuse them with other roaches, particularly the German cockroach. Asian and German cockroaches are the same in size and color, and both have two black lines down either side of their neck.

Asian cockroaches have the capability of sustained flight while their German cousins glide short distances because they cannot fly. The wing tips on the German roach are even with the tip of its abdomen while the wing tips on the Asian roach stick out past the abdomen tip.

Unfortunately for cockroach identifiers, the Asian cockroach can be confused with the Pennsylvania wood cockroach because the wood roach is an adept flier, too. The wood roach does not have the two black lines on its neck and it is somewhat larger than the Asian roach.

The main difference among the Asian cockroach and other roaches found in the South is that the Asian roach thrives in the outdoors and seeks its food source outside, Jarratt said. And the Asian cockroach, at this stage of introduction in the United States, may be easier to control with insecticides because the roach has not had time and the generations to build up tolerance to poison.

"It's just too early in the introduction phase to determine that we're going to be 3 feet deep in Asian cockroaches," Jarratt said. "We're just too early in the game."

FRONT PORCH SCENARIOS

Just imagine the drama that has unfolded on the front porches of Mississippi homes down through the years!

Everyone who grew up in the country a generation or so ago knows of the importance of front porches in family affairs. Before air conditioning they were outdoor living rooms and the places where many important family conferences were held—along with being the centerpiece of many social gatherings.

Porches were usually designed to offer shade from the sun at certain periods of the day, a refuge from the rain if it didn't blow too much, and a place to sit and meditate and rest and watch the world go by if located along a roadway which most of them were.

A lot of boys and girls gave or received their first kisses of adolescent love on front porches. Many couples were betrothed there. Adults received visitors and met new business acquaintances or politicians in that setting.

It was on this writer's front porch that I heard the KO counted out when Joe Louis plastered Max Schmelling for the World's Heavyweight Boxing title, and Major Bowles used to ring his infamous "bell" when talent acts on his amateur hour were not talented enough. It was there that my family chuckled at Fibber McGee's closet door was opened and noisily emptied its contents on a popular national radio show of the 30's.

Traveling as I do over rural Mississippi I often can't resist the temptation of pulling up into a driveway and talking to people on their front porches. A few weeks ago it happened in rural Walthall County near the Bogue Chitto River. The porch looked inviting—fully shaded and screened. As I stepped inside the screened door I noticed a full size bed suspended from ropes from the ceiling—a swinging bed.

Roy Atchison, now age 78, retired Production Credit Association official from the Tylertown branch of the Brookhaven PCA office for 15 years before he returned to his farm, called out for me to "come in" as I stood at the door. Soon his wife Bonnie had concluded a telephone conversation and joined us, taking a comfortable perch on the edge of the swinging bed.

You learn a lot of interesting things about people when you sit down unhurriedly on their front porches. Roy and Bonnie both grew up in the community where they still live. They have five children—the first four born on successive December dates. The youngest was scheduled for the fifth December birth, but Bonnie took a fall and the child came a little earlier. Otherwise, all five of the Atchison children would have had successive December birthdays.

Today all five children are grown and there are four grandchildren. A daughter is the wife of an Air Force officer stationed in England who telephones "momma" regularly whenever she has an excuse. The other day it was to get her mother's recipe for lemon ice box pie as she was entertaining U.S. Air Force officers and wives in her English

Part One in a series on divorce

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

A divorce can be a very traumatic experience but possibly not as disheartening as discovering, after the settlement, that the child support isn't going to cover your child-rearing expenses. This situation arises from confusion over the actual costs of raising a child and how much each parent should pay.

To avoid an inadequate child support settlement, know your costs. Determine your present costs by writing down all expenses for a month or two using common budget categories such as the following:

Food at Home
Food Away From Home
Clothing
Housing—child's share of rent or mortgage and utilities
Medical care—health insurance, eye care, dental expenses, medical expenses
Education—tuition, books, supplies, fees, special equipment
Transportation
Child Care
Parents need to decide whose health insurance policy will insure the children. The amount of the health insurance premium is a contribution toward the child's support.

After you have determined present expenses, think about how expenses will change in the future. Will the child attend college or post-high school training? If so, how much will this cost and who will pay it? Also figure in increased transportation expenses as children travel between their mother's and father's home. There may also be duplication of expenses because children are part of two households.

Some expenses actually decrease as children grow older (such as child care), but most of them increase. Inflation will also increase costs of child-rearing. Make sure child-support provisions consider both inflation and the needs of older children.

Two publications which can greatly aid you in estimating needs are USDA "Cost of Food at Home" and "Cost of Raising a Child". These are available free of charge through the Consumer Money Management Center by calling 388-4710.

VOTE JERRY MEDFORD for Supervisor District 3

Vote for a man who will ask your opinion and listen to you. One who will be fair to all the people in District 3. A man who grew up in an orphanage and learned the good values of life at an early age—honesty—fairness—and religious upbringing.

- One who served his country in Korea and later earned a B.S. degree on the GI bill.
- He again served his country as a Federal Special Agent for 25 years and through hard work and dedication rose to the position of Regional Director of the five central Gulf States.
- He has worked with the state of Mississippi on drug education programs for our children and now serves on the State Legislative Board for the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) working for a better life for our older citizens. He cares.

This same dedication and values will guide him in his service to you as your next supervisor.

Paid political advertisement submitted to and approved by Jerry Medford.

Jimmy Travirca's opponent mailed a letter to voters recently, in which he stated: "I do not know of any accomplishments of the incumbent."

This is understandable, because for most of his adult life he has not been here. He chose to leave our county. He was gone for over 20 years. That was his choice—and that's alright.

Not being able to see any accomplishments, from his point of view, is alright, too. He is either not looking—or he is acting like a politician.

One accomplishment that Jimmy Travirca is very proud of is the establishment of a fulltime veterans service officer. His opponent couldn't be expected to know this. He wasn't here when it was done. Hundreds of veterans in Hancock think this action was important. So does Jimmy Travirca.

County Agent's Notes

Farm Outlook

Although most Mississippi farm families, and that includes many of us in Hancock County, are still struggling with huge debts and sharply reduced assets, our farm income is improving. This year will be a substantially better year for many farmers in Mississippi and across the United States.

Most farm product prices are above those a year ago, total production costs may drop and yield prospects appear to be above average. These factors should push farm income and net farm income for Mississippi above the reduced levels we experienced in 1986.

One factor that is gaining momentum is our agricultural exports. Our export volume for agricultural products is expected to rise 18 million tons in fiscal 1987, the first increase in seven years. Reduced grain supplies of our international competitors and a surge in world demand boosted the 1987 export forecast about 13 million tons between February and May.

Hay Making

For those of you who do not have enough hay for your animals, there is still time to make hay from bermudagrass, dallisgrass and bahiagrass. Some of the better hay you will want to have can be made in late summer and early fall as this grass continues to grow.

For more hay of better quality, apply any needed fertilizer to keep your grasses growing. Store hay of lower quality so that it can be fed early when you animals do not need high quality hay. High quality hay should be stored under shelter, if possible.

Do-it-yourself breakfast

Cereal breakfast can be nutritious

Back to school means more time spent in the kitchen, as children return to the routine of regular meal time.

The do-it-yourself breakfast cereal, fruit and milk is a popular way to start the day in many households. It is quick to fix, easy to prepare by even small children, and tasty.

But is it nutritious? That depends on two things: the cereal's nutrient content and the amount of presweetener added, according to Barbara P. McLaurin, a human nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

To find out which cereals contain the most sugar, turn on the television during prime time for children's programs and watch a few commercials, or investigate the shelves in the grocery store—at a child's eye level. Some of the cereals contain as much as 30 to 50 percent sugar.

"To choose a good ready-to-eat breakfast cereal, read the package label to find out what you're getting," McLaurin said. "One of the best nutritional values around is a whole-grain cereal."

Whole-grain cereal choices are increasing in the marketplace due to consumer demand. They provide important amounts of B complex vitamins, magnesium, iron and nutrients needed in very small amounts. They are also a good source of dietary fiber, she said.

Most other cereals are fortified with some of these nutrients. Check the nutrition label on the package.

When choosing a fortified cereal, select one with no more than 20 to 50 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance. McLaurin said highly fortified cereals should be considered dietary supplements, like vitamin pills, and generally are not needed.

Next consider the sweetener content. Many cereal packages have information on the sugar content. Look for the word "sucrose." That is sugar. One teaspoon of sugar is equal to about four grams of sucrose. So if a one-ounce serving of cereal (about a cereal bowl full) contains 11 grams of sucrose, this is equal to almost three teaspoons of sugar.

"When you decide on a good cereal, be careful not to add back all of the sugar you were cutting down on when you reach for the sugar bowl at the breakfast table," she said. "If you add sugar to your cereal, try cutting the amount in half."

Or consider adding fresh fruit in season instead of sugar. The fruits also contain sugar, but they provide many other nutrients as well.

If the kids are insistent that they prefer the highly presweetened cereals, consider a compromise. Serve the presweetened cereal with milk as "dessert" after a meal. The milk makes the "dessert" more nutritious and the highly sweetened cereal will not take the place of other more nutritious foods.

Mental Health Center

Nearly 20 years ago the people in Hancock County made a decision to support the establishment of a community mental health-mental retardation center.

Joining with Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties, they voted to commit a minimum of one and a half mills of their assessed property tax to help support the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center.

In doing so they not only insured that these much-needed services would be available in this area, but they also made it possible for citizens in Hancock County to receive these services on a sliding fee scale.

The sliding fee schedule, which bases fees on family income and other factors, means that no one is denied services because of inability to pay.

In 1969 the four counties—Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone—formally established a regional commission as the governing body for the community mental health center.

Each county's board of supervisors appoints a mental health-mental retardation commissioner, and these four commissioners constitute a legal discretionary body.

The current Hancock County MHMR commissioner is Mrs. Anita (Neetsie) Lamb of Bay St. Louis.

Each of the commissioners has an equal vote and the chairmanship is rotated annually.

The commission in turn hires a center director who is the chief administrator for the programs in all four counties. The present center director is Jeffrey L. Bennett, MSW. Initially, Hancock County residents had to travel to Gulfport to receive mental health services. The main office, located near Memorial Hospital in Gulfport, is a modern building, especially designed to be a mental health clinic.

As early as 1972 clinical services were provided in Hancock County itself in office space donated by the St. Augustine Seminary.

Then in 1976 a program for seriously developmentally delayed children was opened at what is now the Silver Creek Catfish House on the Kiln-DeLisle Road.

This program was closed in 1979 when the public schools were charged with the responsibility for the children in this category.

In late 1979 the Hancock Industries' program for mentally handicapped adults was opened at the corner of Highway 90 and Drinkwater Road.

Also at that time our counseling office was moved from the seminary to the same Drinkwater Road location.

As the demand for services increased, a larger facility was needed, and in the summer of 1983 the Hancock County programs were moved to what is often referred to as the "old Jitney building" on State Street in downtown Bay St. Louis.

This move represented a historic turning point for mental health and mental retardation programs in Hancock County. The availability of a larger facility enabled Hancock Industries to take on industrial-type projects such as making pallets, assembling cable spools, and doing contract packaging for major retailers.

Also during this move the building was remodeled to include two clinical offices and a waiting room. As a result, the level of clinical services grew from a one-day-a-week to a four-day-per-week operation.

In January of 1987 the "Jitney" building was sold to an electronics manufacturer, thus requiring another move, but it all turned out for the best.

The Hancock Industries program was moved to an industrial site at Port Blenville with even more growth potential.

The clinical offices were moved to a leased office suite in Shieldsboro Square. This suite includes a waiting/reception area, three clinical offices including a special children's office, and a group therapy-conference room.

With the exception of direct medical contacts, all services available in the main office in Gulfport are now also available in Hancock County.

Hancock County has grown. The 1980 census listed 24,500 people. Estimates by the State Research and Development Office now place the population of Hancock County at 32,000.

Many local officials estimate that is actually higher than the state estimates would indicate. Hancock County is reported to be one of the fastest growing areas in Mississippi.

Meeting these growing demands presents a special challenge to the Mental Health Center.

Actually it is a double challenge. Not only has the population increased significantly, but within that population, a greater percentage of the people are seeking mental health services.

It is now becoming more acceptable to seek mental health services and many people who would not have considered going to a counselor in the past now use these services themselves or bring their children.

The Gulf Coast Mental Health Center is the recipient of United Way Funds in Harrison, South Pearl River and Hancock counties.

These funds are particularly important because many of our other sources of funds are specifically earmarked for special purposes such as serving individuals who have been to the State Hospital or for drug and alcohol problems.

United Way funds help us meet needs not covered by other programs. An example would be the services provided to children who have been sexually abused.

The center's multidisciplinary staff includes specialists trained to work with children, adolescents and adults.

In addition to dealing with a wide variety of emotional problems, the center offers marital counseling, family counseling, substance abuse programs, as well as services to persons with the more severe disorders.

Information about any of these services is available by calling 467-0183 or 1-863-1132.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. After examining my blood test, my doctor told me that my calcium level was high and advised that I stop taking calcium supplements. Another doctor told me that a high calcium level meant that my body was using up its calcium reserve and I should take calcium supplements. Which doctor should I believe? Mrs. S.D., Boutte, La.

A. According to Dr. Jeffery Frey, a specialist in internal medicine at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, both doctors could be correct. If the calcium level in the blood is elevated, taking more calcium will make it worse. However, a high calcium level in the blood could mean that the body is using up its reserve.

Calcium is a mineral stored in the bones and essential for a variety of functions, including heart muscle contraction and nerve impulse transmission. Calcium levels are regulated by the parathyroid gland. High levels may indicate parathyroid malfunction, myeloma, a type of bone cancer most common in men over 40 or other cancers which have spread to the bone. High levels may also indicate an excess intake of calcium or vitamin D. Low calcium levels can be found in people with kidney disease or vitamin D deficiency.

The important thing to find out, Dr. Frey says, is why your calcium level is elevated. A common cause could be other medications you may be taking, for example, diuretics, which inhibit the kidney's ability to take calcium out of the blood. Another common cause of high levels of calcium may be due to an over-active parathyroid gland. A third reason for elevated calcium in the blood may be due to the fact that you may be taking antacids containing bicarbonate, along with excess calcium either in the form of supplements or by drinking milk, making the calcium level in your blood higher than normal for you.

Dr. Frey advises that you consult your physician to determine the cause of the high calcium level in order to determine what treatment, if any is necessary.

Ask Ochsner answers medical questions of general interest. If you have a medical question you would like us to address, send it to Ask

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

FHA INTEREST RATES
Question: I understand that FHA interest rates are no longer set by FHA. Is this true and if so, who sets FHA rates on residential loans? D.C., Gulfport

Answer: Dear D.C.:

In August 1982, HUD/FHA offered the "negotiated interest rate program," which abandoned the longstanding mandatory limit on permissible interest rates. For the first time, a borrower was permitted to pay a discount under certain popular FHA programs. By 1984, the FHA no longer issued interest rate ceiling quotations. However, the VA continued interest rate limitations for its own loan guarantees. Probably because of the long relationship between the FHA and the VA, the marketplace continued to categorize FHA loans in the same interest rate-limited class as VA loans.

The purpose for setting out limitations to begin with was to protect a government-underwritten loan from being abused by private lenders. Clearly, the borrower should not be forced to pay extra fees to a private lender for the government assistance. In practice, however, the marketplace has long balanced the mandatory fixed interest rate limits against current market yield requirements through an adjustment of the discount. The discount had to be paid by the seller and often was added to the price of the house. As the market for mortgage loans enlarged and all mortgage loans competed with other credit demands, the true purpose of a discount prevailed—that is, to adjust an interest rate so as to meet a market yield requirement. No lender is interested in earning less money simply to accommodate a government program. They can easily invest their funds in other kinds of loans. In recognition of this market procedure, HUD/FHA now permits the applicable interest rate to float with current market conditions.

Since private lenders are now able to set FHA interest rates at market levels, you should contact more than one lender to compare rates. You may find a difference in regard to discount points and interest rates quoted.

Non-chemical insect control

Delta farmer chooses weeds for insect control

By Rebekah Therrell
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

In the midst of controversy over the use of farm chemicals, one Delta farmer is experimenting with a natural, non-chemical method for controlling insects.

Tallahatchie County pecan grower Henry Thornton is using vetch and clover for effective, low-cost control of pecan aphids. These grasses attract a wide variety of insects, including ladybugs and lacewings, which are natural predators of pecan aphids.

Thornton planted vetch and clover in his orchard last fall. The grasses came up this spring and ladybugs and lacewings began feeding on the insects in the grasses. When the grasses die down this fall, ladybugs and lacewings will continue feeding on aphids in Thornton's pecan trees.

Thornton says he got the idea from the United States Department of Agriculture Research. "I tried it some last year and then went ahead with it 100 percent this year," Thornton said. "I just really think it is working and I see a lot of ladybugs and lacewings."

Thornton says his natural method for controlling aphids is much less expensive than chemical control. "I really did not have much initial cost besides the clover and vetch and the labor to put it out," Thornton said. "I would say we spent $200 to $250 for seed on our 50 acres."

Thornton says he likes not having to rely on chemicals for controlling aphids in his pecan orchards and he may never go back to using chemicals.

"I do not like spraying, even though it has been approved by the government," Thornton said.

Thornton says he will spend little, if anything, on controlling aphids next year since vetch and clover are perennial grasses. He says his only cost might be supplementing his crop of ladybugs with more ladybugs from a supplier in California.

Legendary computer pioneer to address NORDA women's group

Retired Navy Rear Admiral Grace Hopper will address an anticipated packed house at NSTL's Visitors' Center auditorium, Building 1200, beginning at 1 p.m. Aug. 28.

The visit of the 60-year-old computer pioneer, who is now a senior consultant with the Digital Equipment Corporation in Washington, D.C. will highlight a week-long celebration marking the 67th anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guaranteed women the right to vote.

The Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) Federal Women's Program Committee, which is sponsoring the visit, will coordinate the distribution of tickets to Rear Admiral Hopper recount her years as a key figure in the development of the automatic data processing industry.

She was born Grace Brewster Murray on Dec. 9, 1906 in New York. She attended Vassar College, graduating in 1928, with Phi Beta Kappa and a Vassar College Fellowship. She attended Yale University, where she received the degrees of M.A. in 1930, and Ph.D. in 1934.

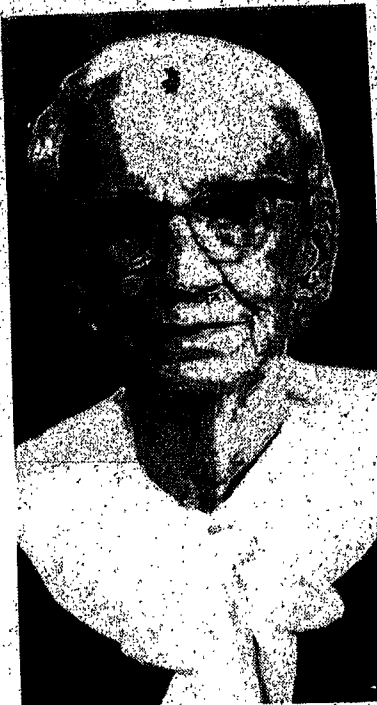

She returned to Vassar as an assistant in mathematics in 1931, becoming successively, instructor, assistant professor and associate professor. During this time, she received a Vassar Faculty Fellowship and studied at New York University (1941-1942).

In December 1943, she entered the United States Naval Reserve and attended the USNR Midshipman's School-W at Northampton, Mass. Upon graduation, she was commissioned lieutenant junior grade and ordered to the Bureau of Ordnance Computation Project at Harvard. Here, she learned to program the first large-scale digital computer, the Mark I. In 1946, she joined the Harvard faculty as a research fellow in Engineering Sciences and Applied Physics at the Computation Laboratory, where work continued on the Mark II and Mark III computers for the Navy.

In 1949, she joined as senior mathematician, the Eckert-Mauchly Computer Corp. in Philadelphia, then building UNIVAC I, the first commercial large-scale electronic computer. She remained with the company as a senior programmer when it was bought by Remington Rand and later merged into the Sperry Corp. She was appointed systems engineer, director of automatic programming in 1952 when she published the first paper on compilers. She retired from the UNIVAC Division of the Sperry Rand Corp. in December 1971, while on military leave.

Since 1952, she has published over fifty papers and articles on software and programming languages. She was a leader in the development of the COBOL computer language and is a member of the Executive Committee of CODASYL (Conference on Data Systems Languages.)

In 1962, she was elected a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. In 1964, she was selected to receive the 1964 Achievement Award by the Society of Women Engineers. In 1969, the Data Processing Management Association selected her as their first Computer Science "Man-of-the-Year." The American Federation of Information Processing Societies gave her the Harry Goode Memorial Award in 1970. In 1971, the UNIVAC Division of Sperry Corp. initiated the Grace Murray Hopper Award for young computer personnel to be awarded annually by the Association for Computer Machinery.

Since 1972, some 40 colleges and universities have conferred honorary degrees on Hopper, including George Washington University in Washington, D.C.; Acadia University, Nova Scotia; Linköping University, Sweden, and the University of Maryland. She has also received more than 30 gold medals and other prestigious awards, including a Wilbur Lucius Cross Medal from Yale University, the Legion of Merit by the Navy, and the IEEE Computer Pioneer Medal. She received the Living Legacy Award, Women's International Center, San Diego and was a recipient of the Women of the Year Award, Young Women's Christian Association of the National Capital Area.

She is a member of the Association for Computing Machinery, the Data Processing Management Association, the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the Franklin Institute, the U.S. Naval Institute, and the International Oceanographic Foundation.

She maintained her close connection with the Naval Reserve and was successively promoted to lieutenant, lieutenant commander and commander. At the end of 1966, she was retired with the rank of commander in the Retired Reserve. She was recalled to active duty on Aug. 1, 1967. On Aug. 2, 1973, she was promoted to the rank of captain on the retired list of the Naval Reserve.

On Nov. 8, 1983, she was promoted to the rank of commodore with the title of that grade changed to rear admiral on Nov. 8, 1985. She served on active duty with the Naval Data Automation Command until Sept. 1, 1986, when her name was returned to the retired list. At the time, she was the oldest U.S. Navy officer on active duty. At her retirement ceremony aboard the USS Constitution, Navy Secretary John Lehman presented her with the Distinguished Service Medal.

Due to the high cost of living, misuse of credit, higher standards of living, job instability and sloppy buying habits, more and more people are finding themselves in financial difficulty.

If you are in debt, your financial situation is getting out of control, or you are heading for bankruptcy, you may feel that you have few options. However, there may be more options available than you think. Take steps to determine those options immediately. First assess your situation.

1. Know your dependable income.
2. Know your fixed, predictable expenses such as rent, insurance, etc., including payments on debts.
3. Estimate flexible expenses such as food, recreation, clothing, transportation.
4. Plan for medical care and for possible emergencies.

Once you know exactly where you stand, you can make the best decision concerning creditors.

If you find yourself in a difficult situation, the last person you may want to speak to is your creditor.

However, not contacting the creditor is one of the worst mistakes you can make. Even if there are not funds available for full payments to each creditor, face the situation and the creditor. Many creditors will even assist by working out temporary reduced or deferred payments.

Be sure that you have any new agreement in writing as well as verbal form, and then stick to it. Remember, your record of financial responsibilities will influence your ability to get credit in the future.

Another option is a credit consultation. The Cooperative Extension Service Consumer Money Management Center offers the services of a professional who study your financial situation and make suggestions for better money management.

Credit consultation can help to lessen your worry, teach you discipline and skill in managing your money, and help you develop a plan to aid in realizing your financial goals. Call 388-4710 in Harrison County, 467-5456 in Hancock County, or 769-3047 in Jackson County to schedule a free appointment.

Another source of help is through credit-counseling services. These agencies help people who are in deep financial trouble to budget their money. However, be wary if a regular charge—a percentage of your debt, for instance—is involved.

Some credit counseling agencies will speak to lenders about your situation and will make payments for you from an agreed-upon sum that you will send them every month.

This may cause you to have a tightly restricted operating budget, but the reward of being debt-free is immeasurable.

To find out your other financial alternatives, contact the Consumer Money Management Center at one of the above numbers.

Vacation scams prohibited in Mississippi

The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office has received a temporary restraining order keeping Vacation Services, Inc. from doing business in Mississippi.

Attorney General Ed Pittman said the request for the TRO was filed in Hinds County Chancery Court after the division received more than 90 complaints against the company. Investigation showed that the Jackson Better Business Bureau received more than 200 complaints.

Vacation Services has been advertising and selling travel club memberships. Through post cards, they have notified consumers of "free vacations" in Mexico, the Bahamas, Hawaii, Florida and other resort areas. The recipients were given a Jackson telephone number to call for more information about their "prize."

The complaint, along with affidavits from former Vacation Club employees, said that consumers who telephone the company were then told to pay a "processing fee" ranging from $69.50 to $198.50. This fee was not mentioned in the post card. The callers were also asked for a credit card number.

The company would then charge the consumer's credit card account for the price of a vacation club membership, the complaint said. The attorney general's suit charged that the club did not give promised refunds to dissatisfied customers and that they did not give refunds for the original phone call, as the post cards promised.

Vacation Services, Inc. was also doing business as Sun Vacations, Sunbelt Marketing and Management Group, Sunbelt Marketing, Sunbelt Vacations, Sunbelt Direct Vacations, and Market Research Corporation.

They have been enjoined against conducting business under any of these names. Also named as defendants were company president Roy Morris and vice-president Paul Bently.

JoAnne McLeod, head of the Consumer Protection Division, asks any consumer who has a complaint against the company to call the division at 354-6018.

Weekly state crop report (covering week of Aug. 8-14)

Poultry stressed by soaring temps

Soaring temperatures this summer have not caused significant death loss in Mississippi poultry but they have led to some production problems among growers.

Production inefficiencies caused by excessive heat make birds grow at a slower rate than normal and produce more body heat when digesting feed, said Dr. Robert Haynes, a poultry science specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Poultry cannot stand temperatures much above 95 degrees," Haynes said. "If the temperature is 96 degrees, the birds are heavily stressed. At 100 degrees they may not be able to survive an afternoon."

"If the temperature is warmer than 80 degrees or colder than 70 degrees, some production efficiency will be lost in growing and in using food," Haynes said.

When temperatures climb, poultry producers can regulate feeding times of birds which have reached market age. Feed is removed from the poultry house by 8 a.m. and the birds are not fed until 7 p.m.

Excessive heat can be controlled if producers insulate their poultry houses and install fans and fogging systems. Fans circulate air and foggers spray fine mists of cool water to lower the temperature.

Over 70 percent of the state's poultry houses have insulation, fans and foggers. Thirty percent have only insulation and fans.

Haynes said death loss from heat has been greatly reduced in houses with fogging systems.

The state has about 335 million broilers, 3 million commercial layers, 2.5 million broiler breeder layers and 706 million market eggs. In other related agricultural news, weather continues to be discussed among state county agents and farmers. Scattered rain has relieved some areas of the state but effects have been minimized by high temperatures.

"About half of the county has had plenty of rain, and about half has not had enough," said Thomas Swoope, Attala County agent. "A good general rain is needed."

Cotton is opening in Attala and Lauderdale counties. Worms and boll weevils are a problem in Itawamba County's cotton crop.

Waveland T-Ball Team wins State Championship

This past Saturday Waveland T-Ball All Stars defeated Waynesboro in a best out of three series to win the State Championship in Waynesboro.

In the opening game Saturday they won 20-4 by playing great defense and scoring runs every time they came to bat.

The game was called in the fourth inning by the coach of Waynesboro declaring Waveland winners of the first game.

The second game was a more competitive and closer game. It was anyone's ball game until Waveland exploded for 11 runs in the last two innings to win 18-8.

This All Star team has played great baseball all year and went through district and state tournaments undefeated.

League president Bernard Tusa commended manager Preston Mauffray for 'great leadership,' as well as coaches Lonnie Clayborn, John Pucheu and Ken Karanick, 'for bringing home our first state championship.'

"It is impossible for me to single out any one player for his outstanding performance because winning the Mississippi State Championship was totally a team effort. Congratulations," Tusa added.

Bay swimmer breaks record, wins butterfly at southern regionals

BY DENA BISNETTE

A 17-year-old swimmer from Bay St. Louis has broken a state 100-meter freestyle record twice and won the 100-meter butterfly race in an 11-state southern zone competition.

Lonnie Ray, who just returned from a summer of competition and training in Columbus, competed in Baton Rouge, La., over the weekend in the 100-meter butterfly, 200-meter butterfly and 100-meter freestyle.

In competition against swimmers from 11 other southern states, he took first place in the 100-meter butterfly but fell to sixth in the 200-meter butterfly.

Although Ray broke a state record twice in the 100-meter freestyle, he placed fifth in that event.

During freestyle preliminaries, he broke a Hattiesburg swimmer's 1985 record of 55:09 with a time of 55:02.

Ray's new record was short-lived, however, because he broke it himself that evening in finals competition by finishing in 55:45.

The swimmer will add his trophies and medals to a collection of 85 trophies and an assortment of medals and ribbons already decorating a living room wall in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Ray of Shoreline Park.

He can add the new record to three others, two of which he still holds. They include a 400-meter individual medley and a two-mile record, both set when he was eight years old, and a 100-meter butterfly record he set when he was 14.

Ray is in his 10th year of competition, most of which has been with the Golden Triangle Swim Club in the Columbus, Starkville and West Point area, under Coach Jeff Waldrop.

The teenager has also competed with a club from Ocean Springs that he said is the only competitive swimming program he could find on the Mississippi Gulf Coast after his family moved here in 1982.

He said he returned to the Columbus program two years ago because "it was a choice between Columbus and Ocean Springs and Columbus had a better program," and because commuting to Ocean Springs twice a day, six days each week to practice was difficult.

Ray spends summers with relatives in Columbus in order to participate in the swimming program there.

Ray's training has also included three days of weightlifting each week.

"The swimming amounts to about 10,000 yards a day except when there's a meet," he explained.

"You really can't do other things. You just have to think about swimming."

His goal is a college scholarship, preferably at Florida State or another school with a major swimming program.

In the last state meet in which Ray competed, he won six first places out of the nine events in which he swam, one second place, one third place and one fourth place.

He is hoping that performances like those at his two most recent meets will inspire college scouts to recruit him.

However, he does not expect to attend at a Mississippi school because swimming is not a major sport at this state's colleges and universities.

When he moved to the coast from West Point, he was surprised to find a place he considers appropriate for a major swimming program without one.

"People down here don't know much about it. They don't know what to think," Ray said.

"I think it would be good if someone could start a swim team in Bay St. Louis."

His real competition at Southern Zone meets like the one in Baton Rouge comes from Louisiana, Alabama and Florida swimmers.

"The swimmers from Florida are tough competition, and they have some pretty fast ones in Louisiana too," Ray said.

The swimmer has had some travelling opportunities through his chosen sport, including one YMCA Nationals meet when he went to Fort Lauderdale to compete against athletes from all over the U.S.

"I was 14. I was the youngest one there. Everybody else was 17 or 18 and I felt like this little kid running around the pool," Ray said. "I had barely made the cut-off time to qualify to go."

His performance there helped him choose his specialties, the sprint freestyle and the butterfly, which he said is the hardest stroke to do "because you're moving both arms at the same time. It tires you out pretty quick."

Although state, national and regional meets are more important than others, "They're all special and they're fun," Ray said.

"Most of my trophies are high point trophies. Each meet gives a high point trophy for each age group, so that's what I shoot for."

Ray played football at Bay Junior High but gave it up in favor of swimming.

"It was okay, but I'm a lot better swimmer than I am a football player."

"I don't do much but swim. I like to waterski, and when I have time I like to fish, hunt or ride motorcycles."

He recommends swimming to other young athletes.

"It's kind of hard to get injured swimming. It's not like a contact sport. It's more you against them than their teams against yours," he said.

"Swimming uses every muscle in your body. A swimmer is better rounded. You have to have great breath control and strong legs and arms. You have to be able to do everything fair instead of just one thing good."

For the sake of making a better time in a state meet, Ray had his hair cut short and shaved his body.

"I'd give up a little hair to be a state champ," he said.

"A swimmer needs to be fluid in the water; that means big in the shoulders and narrow in the hips—hydrodynamically designed. You have to be as streamlined as possible."

Ray said he also likes the team aspect of swimming.

"Sometimes you really don't expect to do that well, but when your team is yelling for you and you're all psyched up you do better than you thought you could," he explained.

He also stresses cooperating with a coach, both during a meet and during training, and having a positive mental attitude.

"You have to have the right attitude and do what the coach tells you even if you think your arms will fall off."

A competition pool is usually 50 meters one way and 25 yards the other way, and both measurements are used in training. The swimmer beginning training works on meters to build strength, then trains on yards later to work on turns.

"The hardest thing is getting in all that yardage," Ray said. "It hurts when you're swimming, but the coach just pulls it out of you. I guess."

Ray has done some coaching for younger swimmers, has worked as a lifeguard and has taught children ages four to seven to swim. He said he has not yet decided whether to make coaching his career, although he likes the work.

In addition, he said the money comes in handy because swimming can be an expensive sport. One reason is that the swimmer generally pays his own expenses because he is participating in a sport that does not receive funding through a school athletic program.

Additional expense occurs because Ray has to leave Bay St. Louis each year in order to have a place to train and compete. He said he has not been able to find any local pools that are big enough for training, except for turns, which he practices in a narrow pool his father constructed for him.

"I don't like leaving, but that's what I have to do," he said.

Ray, who will be a senior at Bay High this year, has not decided how far he will go with his sport.

Swimming could take him to the Olympics in the future, but not right now.

"The longest I've ever trained in one stretch has been five months. Olympic swimmers train 11 months to a year," he said.

"If I ever trained the whole year, I think I'd do pretty good. Maybe I'll try it when I get on a real weight program in college."

TROPHY COLLECTION—Swimmer Lonnie Ray displays a bowl, one of his favorite trophies, from a collection he has put together during 10 years of swimming competition. The collection includes 85 trophies and various ribbons and medals. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

WORD WISE

Q. I always thought that the word fish was both plural and singular. But recently I saw the word fishes used. Is this correct? — A.M.R. Denver, CO

A. You are correct in thinking that fish is plural, but fishes is also correct. Fish, the plural, pertains to many fish of the same type. If you went fishing and caught ten bass, you caught ten fish. But if you caught some bass, some flounder, some sole and a few mackerel, not only did you have a good day, but you caught fishes. The same differentiation applies to the word people (plural) and peoples (plural). People means a homogeneous group (the people of your neighborhood) and peoples means a heterogeneous group (the peoples of South America).

Millsaps campus parking no longer available for Jackson football games

JACKSON—Parking space on the north end of the Millsaps College campus previously available for football games at Memorial Stadium will not be available this fall, Millsaps President George Harmon said.

Safety considerations and reduced space available for parking led to the decision to discontinue football parking on the campus, located just south of the stadium.

The college has constructed a new soccer field, a new softball field and added to the existing baseball field on land previously devoted to overflow Memorial Stadium parking.

Plans call for further construction of playing fields. In addition, work has begun on further commercial development of a portion of the north campus at Millsaps.

"We want football fans to be aware that we are not going to offer parking this fall in time to make other arrangements prior to the games," Harmon said.

Millsaps previously allowed vehicles to park on the north campus during stadium games on a space available basis for a charge equal to that for parking on the stadium grounds.

Gulfport Yacht Club wins Knost Regatta

Gulfport Yacht Club's sailing sisters—Leslie, Gail and Shannon Weatherly—captured first place honors in the Fiftieth Anniversary Knost Regatta which was sailed August 8 and 9 at the Pass Christian Yacht Club in Flying Scot class sailboats.

Second place honors went to the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club. Buccaneer Yacht Club of Mobile, Ala. and Pass Christian Yacht Club were third and fourth place winners, respectively. PCYC was the defending yacht club having won the event in 1986.

The Weatherly sisters won two first places and a second to outdistance the field which was represented by 19 sailing clubs on the Gulf Coast area, including southern Florida and New Orleans' Southern Yacht Club.

The Weatherly sisters follow in their father's footsteps. Their dad, "Bubba" Weatherly was a leading Starboat sailor of the Gulfport Yacht Club during the 1940's and 50's.

SALTWATER FISHERIES

Saltwater Fisheries Division biologists are engaged in an oyster reef rehabilitation and low-profile fishing reef construction project this month.

Funded through two $100,000 grants, the work will involve planning approximately 100,000 cubic yards of clamshell at several key locations including the commercial reefs at St. Joseph's Point, Waveland, and St. Stanislaus. Low-profile fishing reefs are slated for Bay St. Louis, Back Bay Biloxi, and the mouth of the West Pascagoula River. The work is expected to be completed by mid-August.

The first of Mississippi's Sportfish Restoration Act projects has now been completed. The new Gulf Park Estates Pier in Jackson County will provide area anglers with plenty of good fishing in the coming months. Two other projects, the Popp's Ferry boat launch facility, and a second launch in Pearl River are due to be completed by September.

Saltwater Fisheries Division biologists have tagged and released some 2,500 brown shrimp in the past month, and returns are steadily coming in. From all indications, the shrimp, which are tagged in the Biloxi Bay area, migrate only a limited distance before recapture. Anyone catching a tagged shrimp, redfish, or other species is asked to call 601-864-4602.

Congratulations are due to staff biologists Mike and Jennifer Buchanan on the birth of their daughter Michelle Victoria on July 7.

WETLANDS PERMITS

The Commission on Wildlife Conservation acted on several permit requests during the July meeting.

The permit request by the Jackson County Board of Supervisors and the Harrison County Board of Supervisors were approved. The Jackson County Board of Supervisors proposed to replace the existing bridge over St. Martin Bayou at LeMoynes Blvd. and the Harrison County Board of supervisors plan to replenish an additional .9 mile of sand beach East of the Biloxi Small Craft Harbor. The replenishment work is an extension of an earlier project to restore all 28 miles of sand beach in Harrison County.

The permit request by Sidney Brown to construct a marina at Bayou Heron was denied and an after-the-fact permit by Mrs. Henry Lawrence to keep an asphalt shingle breakwater in place was denied.

In other action, the Commission voted to extend the permit granted to the Mississippi Air National Guard for an additional period of time to allow them to complete the fuel terminal facility on Bayou Bernard, north of Gulfport.

FIELD WORK

Dianna Hunt of the Wetlands Division met with D. Gerald Miller and Dr. Bill Kruczenki of the Environmental Protection Agency in Lower Hancock County to conduct field assessments and begin strategy development for protecting remote wetland areas in Ansley.

Regulatory problems as well as administrative problems were identified and framework for future meetings were worked out.

COASTAL PROGRAMS

The 306A Low-Cost Construction Program of the Coastal Programs Division is in full swing. Funding in the amount of $474,000 has been approved for 15 projects. City, County and State Governments nominate 306A projects that generally improve public access to waterfronts or protect coastal resources.

The following projects and their status are listed:

Old Fort Bayou Boat Launch, bulkhead under construction; Gulf Park Estates Pier, pier complete, work 909 continuing on parking area; Ocean Springs Community Pier, approved for construction start; Griffin Point Stabilization (Moss Point), gabions 75 percent complete.

Also, Round Island Stabilization, approved for construction start; Marine Enforcement Office Pier Phase I & II, Completed July 1987; Popp's Ferry Boat Launch, Biloxi, construction started July 1987; West Biloxi Pier construction started July 1987; Courthouse Road Pier, Gulfport, Parking area graded; Moses Pier, Gulfport, rip-rap placed; '87 Oyster Reef Rehabilitation, Bids received, contract awarded; Ladner Fishing Pier, Waveland, approved for construction start; Pearl River Boat Launch, pilings driven, ramp in place; Napoleon Boat Launch, Site work started.

Future projects funded and awaiting final clearances are Ullman Avenue Park, Bay St. Louis; Bayou Caddy Boat Launch; Washington Street Boat Launch, Bay St. Louis; Long Beach Harbor Fishing Pier; 1988 Oyster Reef Rehabilitation; Old highway 90 Marsh Restoration, Pascagoula; and McInnis Bayou Pier.

During the first three years of the 306A program, the Bureau of Marine Resources has contributed three quarters of a million dollars to waterfront construction. Gary Cuevas of the Coastal Programs Division, coordinator of the 306A program, wishes to acknowledge the time and effort of the Wetlands and Fisheries Division in the fulfillment of the 306A projects.

SCIENTIFIC-STATISTICAL

Dr. Cornell Ladner and Mr. Tom Shepard, staff members of the Scientific-Statistical Division attended the 1987 Red Drum Aquaculture Conference held in Corpus Christi, Texas. The conference involved a joint research symposium and production short course. A Conference Draft Manual on Red Drum Aquaculture was provided to all registered conference attendees. The research symposium presentations will be published approximately one year from now.

Dr. Cornell Ladner recently designed a closed-recirculating baitfish-holding tank system for Mr. Max Duncan of White's Bayou Marina located on Highway 90 near Pearl River. The system is in operation now and has reportedly eliminated previous mortality problems which were experienced in the old system.

Also, the baitfish show greater vigor and his customers report that the baitfish last much longer in their bait-holding buckets. Mr. Duncan reported to Dr. Ladner that he stocked high densities of baitfish into the system and it surprises him that no problems occurred at such high densities. If you would like to see the system, Mr. Duncan said he would be glad to show it to anyone that is interested in seeing it. Mr. Duncan now plans to build some additional systems with some minor improvements.

Gazelles, prairie dogs and many other animals never drink water. They have a special chemical process which transforms a part of their solid food into water.

Wildcat turnout meets expectations

POPLARVILLE—Pearl River College had 94 players show up for physicals here Thursday afternoon. "It is our policy to give those who want a chance to make the team an opportunity," said Nelson. "We still have our hands full in viewing everyone that's out."

By the time the first game rolls around on September 5th the '87 Cat squad must be down to a required 65. "Everyone we were depending on showed up Thursday," Nelson said. "I'm very pleased with what I have seen so far."

Doc Hudson, the Wildcat trainer, said the players were all in good shape and were ready for the two-a-day practice sessions which began

Friday morning.

"We checked everything from their hairline to their toe nails," said Hudson. Assisting in the complete physicals were Dr. Doug House and Dr. Richard Conn of South Mississippi Orthopedic Association; Dr. Chris Matthews of Poplarville and Scott Belham, athletic trainer for Sports Medicine at Forrest General Hospital in Hattiesburg.

The wildcats will work out twice a day straight through the weekend and until registration Friday morning. Morning practice is divided into three-hour sessions beginning at 8 a.m. The afternoon practice begins at 3.

KEEPING FIT

If you don't get home from work until nightfall, but want to take up a great form of exercise — walking — here are some tips for safe walking after dark.

1. Wear reflective clothing. This is an extremely important safety measure, particularly if you will be walking in heavily trafficked or dimly-lit areas.
  2. Know the surface of the terrain. Before you set out to health walk along a specific trail or street, get to know its surface by the light of day. A cracked curb or pothole that is easily seen during daylight hours can trip you up in the dark.
  3. Become familiar with the nighttime environment of the neighborhood. Exercise under the stars may prove so invigorating that you'll extend your walk into areas you don't know well. Maintain your health walk in well-lit, populated areas.
  4. Always health walk with a friend. Conversation at the end of a busy day can be relaxing, and there is safety in numbers. You may even consider including the family dog in your health walking routine — both for company and as an additional safety measure.
- Health walking at night is particularly inviting because of the cool evening air, and it's the perfect way to relax after a hectic day of working. But if you walk at night, remember, not only should you exercise your body, you need to exercise caution.

SPORTS LINE

by Jim Fuller

The failure to sign big-time agents last winter, resulted in a Player's Union grievance; collusion was the claim. The grievance is still pending, but the strongest crop of free agents could be this year's group. Maybe the owners could justify not going after some of the free agents during the past winter, but with the current big names there will be no excuses.

Never has this much talent been available in the history of the free agent era of baseball.

Jack Clark is the front runner for the National League MVP; he ranks among league leaders in home runs, runs scored, RBI's and slugging average. The 31-year-old first baseman from the St. Louis Cardinals is likely to be resigned by the team, as he is their only power hitter.

Dale Murphy is a two-time MVP and one of the game's most consistent players. If he is not re-signed by the Atlanta Braves (highly unlikely) then he would be a prize that no team should be able to refuse. Failure to sign a player like Murphy would be an embarrassment.

Players like Evans and Schmidt have had distinguished careers, yet their ages could steer teams away from signing them.

Morris is the leader in pitching victories in this decade, and he tried — unsuccessfully — the free agent route last winter. It will be interesting to watch what happens to him.

Righetti's case is also of interest because of his job — relief pitcher. Teams signing relievers will be taking a chance as free agent relief pitchers haven't always worked out. Still, Righetti did set the all-time save record last year.

Ripken is the final big name and probably the strongest. He is just reaching his prime, a shortstop with power is a rarity.

This group, if they become free agents, will force some movement in the free agent market, or a lawsuit. The choice is left to the owners.

Bulldogs preping for Sept. 3 opener against East Mississippi

PERKINSTON—Coach George Sekul of the Gulf Coast Junior College Bulldogs reports some 100 prospects turned out on the Perkinston Campus last Thursday to begin practice for the 1987 football season. "Beginning Friday, we started two workouts a day—at 9 a.m. and at 3 p.m.," Sekul said. "The first three days we practiced in light gear. Now we're in full uniform in preparation for our first game on Thursday, Sept. 3."

The opener of a 10-game schedule is on the road against East Mississippi at Scooba. The Bulldogs make their home debut the following week when they play East Central at Perkinston.

Assisting Sekul are Clem Dellinger and Joe Allen. Dellinger is responsible for receivers and linebackers. Allen's responsibility is the interior offensive and defensive lines.

Last year the Bulldogs ended the season with a 9-3 record and the state championship. They traveled to Boone, North Carolina to claim the East Bowl championship over fourth-ranked Lees-McRae College.

Bulldogs enlist transfers

PERKINSTON—Gulf Coast Junior College football coach George Sekul announced that he has picked up four top senior college transfers.

They are Eldrich Quave and Archie Fairley, both of Moss Point, Anthony Ramsey of Gulfport, and Michael Canty of Biloxi.

Quave, 6'1", 215, was a linebacker at Louisiana State University. Fairley, 6'2", 285 offensive guard, was an alternate starter for Southern Methodist University.

Defensive tackle Ramsey, 6'4", 265, was reshirted last season with the University of Alabama. Canty, 5'10", 175, was a walk-on quarterback at Jackson State.

Returning lettermen are kicker Adethsack Chanthavane and tight end George Johnson, both of Theodore; wide receiver Ben Steele of Lucedale; offensive guard Jeff Breal of Biloxi; corner back Calvin Cuthbert of Fort Pierce, Fla.; defensive end Bryan Crayton of New Orleans.

Defensive backs are Tim Neal of Miami, Joey Rogers of Gulfport, Jason Jordo of Baton Rouge and Darryl Ware of Moss Point.

The Bulldogs play five home games. They are East Central at Perkinston, Sept. 13, 7:30 p.m.; Itawamba at Biloxi, Sept. 19, 7:30 p.m.; Northeast at Perkinston, Oct. 1, 6:30 p.m.; homecoming game with Hinds at Perkinston, Oct. 24, 3 p.m.; and Co-Lin at Pascagoula, Oct. 31, 7:30 p.m.

Away games include East Mississippi at Scooba, Sept. 3; Southwest at Summit, Sept. 26; Jones at Ellisville, Oct. 10; Pearl River at Poplarville, Oct. 17; and Holmes at Goodman, Nov. 5. All away games are at 7:30 p.m.

Electric trolling motor tips

"The greatest innovation for bass fishing is the electric trolling motor," states Randy Fite, Johnson Pro Staff member. "I wasn't around to scull boat or anything of that nature, but I would certainly see how that would hamper my enjoyment of the sport and also my success in the sport if I had to hold an oar in one hand and try to fish with the other!"

The convenience afforded to bass fishermen by the electric motor has made the sport much more enjoyable and made all anglers who use it much more successful at being able to catch America's favorite gamefish.

Perhaps one of the greatest innovations since the utilization of the electric motor was the production, testing and marketing of the weedless prop. "Where we used to have to fish the outer edge, which is still a good place to fish, now the prop gives us access to fishing inside the weeds," testifies Fite.

For Ken Cook, Evinrude Pro Staff member, one of the most important elements in usage of an effective electric motor is its on/off condition. "I've watched fish a lot in the presence of a trolling motor and you can get right up on fish usually with the trolling motor going. But, if you turn it off or on, the fish spook 99 times out of 100. It's the on/off that spooks fish, I believe. A trolling motor at a slow steady speed is much less likely to spook bass than an on/off condition.

"One of the ways to avoid that high speed on/off condition, I think, is to use a hand control-type trolling motor, one that does not have a foot pedal," Cook relates. "The one that I use with my foot is a hand control model that allows me to turn the trolling motor on and off with a switch on the floor, like a dimmer switch. One push turns the motor on and the second push turns the motor off. I switch the trolling motor on with my foot and then I have an extension on the tiller handle which gives me a little bit more reach for steering, control with my foot or knee.

"I leave it on a low speed. If it's calm, I turn it down to a very, very slow speed and it will take me to my fishing locations one after another—whether it's down the shoreline or bush to bush—at a slow, steady speed. I find I turn it on and off much less with this type of trolling motor as opposed to a foot controlled one."

There's one more thing that Cook likes in a hand controlled operated electric motor: the absence of the meddlesome foot control.

"The foot control trolling motor, made with that pedal that you operate to steer the motor is very uncomfortable especially if you stand up to fish, which I do and I think most fishermen who are really serious about it nowadays do. Standing allows a better advantage of vision. Standing up and running a foot control trolling motor is very uncomfortable. I find that I stand on both feet a lot more when I use a hand control trolling motor. With both feet on the ground, I have better control of my body motion."

Owners of Johnson and Evinrude electric positioning motors might like to try OMC's new weedless propeller for those motors. It has a close-fitting hub and special swept-back blades that OMC says keep it from snagging without sacrificing thrust. The prop fits Johnson and Evinrude electric motors from 1982 through 1987 and is available from Johnson and Evinrude outboard dealers.

TIM'S AUTO TIPS

"Nose bras," the protective leather coverings for the fronts of cars, do a good job of protecting your paint from rocks and other road debris. They also look quite good on some cars, but they can be harmful if not used properly.

If you use a nose bra on your car, be sure to remove it every day and let it lay upside down on a flat surface (preferably in a warm place) so that it will be thoroughly dry when you use it again. Moisture will build up under the nose bra even in seemingly dry weather, and eventually this moisture can damage the paint.

SOLAR RACE CAR—This drawing reveals the exterior design of the solar-powered car, named "GM Sunraycer," which General Motors is building to compete in the 1987 World Solar Challenge in Australia next November. The rendering was created by artists at the GM design staff's Advanced Concept Center in Newbury Park, Ca. The GM Sunraycer is currently being built in California for the race of 1,950 miles across the Australian continent, from Darwin to Adelaide, which starts on November 1. It will run entirely on solar power, using storage batteries charged by the car's solar system and an advanced high-efficiency electric motor.

Vacation Driving Tips

With the summer vacation season here many Mississippians are getting ready to leave on driving vacations. Here are some tips to help you use good driving, proper maintenance, and careful planning to make your trip more enjoyable.

GOOD DRIVING

- Be sure to accelerate smoothly and briskly and don't follow the car ahead of you too closely. If you follow another driver too closely, you will waste gasoline by needless braking and reaccelerating. You also run the risk of having an accident if that driver happens to stop suddenly.

- Maintain even cruising speeds as much as possible and observe the speed limit. Traveling on major highways allows you to cruise at one speed, which conserves gasoline.

- Avoid unnecessary idling—which can consume gas at the rate of a half gallon per hour. Idling more than one minute will waste more gas than it takes to restart the engine.

- If your car has air conditioning, the most fuel efficient time to use it is in open-road driving. The least efficient time to use it is in stop-and-go traffic.

PROPER MAINTENANCE

- A week or two before you leave on your vacation, take your car to a mechanic for an inspection or tune-up, if needed. The inspection will make sure your car is safe and a tune-up could save you 12 percent on your fuel energy costs.
- Check tire pressure. Under-inflated tires cause increased resistance and can cut fuel economy. Over-inflation by more than two or three pounds can cause rapid tire wear. You might consider radial tires because they produce less friction, thereby taking less power to roll along, which improves gas mileage in the city by three to five percent. Be sure that your tires are in correct alignment, also.

- Replace fan belts if they give more than a half an inch.

- If you must use a roof rack to carry luggage, place items as far back as possible so that air will flow smoothly over the top.

- Pack lightly because every 100 pounds of extra weight can decrease mileage by more than two miles per gallon.

CAREFUL PLANNING

- First decide how much time and money you have to spend on your vacation. For most people, expense is the most important item in planning a trip. Personal habits, the amount and frequency of roadside refreshments, the purchase of souvenirs, type of car, season of the year and region covered—all have a significant effect on expenses.

- Allow two and a half hours for every hundred miles you plan to drive. This makes it possible for you to drive within the speed limit (which saves you gasoline) and to stop for meals, fuel, and rest. When calculating times you will arrive in major cities, take special care to avoid rush hour stop-and-go traffic.

- Use your Mississippi state map to plan your trip. Look for destinations that have a number of activities your family could enjoy that are concentrated in one area. Then you can spend several days enjoying the attractions of one place instead of wasting time—and gasoline—traveling from place to place. Also, check to see if part of your sightseeing at that destination can be done by public transportation, by walking, riding a bicycle, etc. Remember that traveling on major highways allows you to use cruise speeds without stopping which is the most efficient way to save gasoline while driving.

- Make all hotel and motel reservations in advance and close to the area you wish to visit. This will assure you of having a room during the busy vacation travel season and will again save you gasoline because you won't be driving around looking for a place to stay.

Have a safe, energy-conserving vacation this summer!!

One of the most delightful cookbooks to cross my desk recently is "Cajun Cuisine" - a "true-blue" to real Acadian "Cajun" cookery ways cookbook that most I have read and tried out.

And it well should be, after all, shouldn't it? For, it's a collective effort by several known-to-be-expert cooks in the bayou country of South Louisiana. And, monitoring the whole business was Marie Louise Comeaux Manuel, authority on Cajun cuisine and director emeritus of the School of Home Economics at the University of South Louisiana. And, it's published by the Angers family, long identified with newspapers and Cajun ways and cooking - how much more Cajun can one get?

(Incidentally, "Cajun Cuisine" is published by Beau Bayou Publishing Company, Lafayette, La. and is available at bookstores. Price, $14.95.)

Back to the cookstove - you'll find all the well known Cajun specialties here, as well as quite a few of the lesser known, and equally delicious.

There's jambalaya, of course, of all sorts, along with etouffee and gumbo and sauce piquante and fricasses of all sorts. These are the foods you'll find on the table at homes along the bayous and in other true Cajun homes, sometimes subtly seasoned and delicate, at other times a bit - but, really, as the more on the hotter and robust side - cookbook reminds us, Cajun cooks don't really splash hot sauce and hot fires over the food - as anyone who's spent much time in Cajun homes can tell you, Cajun cookery is far more subtle than that!

Piquant - yes! Seasoned, yes!

Tongue-tingling, yes! but - just pepper and hot stuff - a big No! There are so many authentic, delicious old-time Cajun recipes in this book that any ambitious cook with a ready skillet (iron preferred) and a desire to cook is sure to be hard-pressed as to which one to cook first.

But, since I had some chicken on hand, I chose:

CAJUN

SMOTHERED CHICKEN
1 chicken, cut into serving pieces
Salt, black pepper, cayenne pepper to your taste
½ cup oil
1 lb. fresh pork sausage (links)
3 large onions, chopped
1 large bell (green) pepper, chopped

4 ribs of celery, chopped
2 tsp. garlic powder
2 cups water
½ cup chopped green onion tops
½ cup chopped parsley
Season the chicken parts with the salt and pepper (I like quite a bit, adjust to your choice.) Brown the chicken in the hot oil in a heavy skillet, and remove from the skillet when brown.

Brown the sausage, remove from skillet and cut in ½ inch pieces. Remove most of the oil from the skillet, then add the onion, bell pepper and celery and cook until onions are transparent. Add the pork sausage, chicken and garlic powder to the skillet with the onions, and slowly add water. Cover and simmer 30 or 40 minutes, then add the green onion tops and parley just before serving over cooked rice. (Serves 4.)

Pass telephone exchange to switch to electronics

The Electronic Switching System (ESS) that will convert Pass Christians' telephone exchange to the latest in state-of-the-art technology is currently being installed.

"This switching equipment, capable of handling tens of thousands of calls per hour, was manufactured by Western Electric," said Pat Santucci, district manager for South Central Bell.

Santucci said the ESS is extremely flexible because of its modular construction.

"Its microprocessor controls the machine's operating system, processes calls, conducts maintenance checks, manages the system's data base and provides service features," Santucci added.

New services that will be available once installation is complete include Custom Calling Services: Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three-way Calling and Speed Calling.

The installation is scheduled to be completed by the end of August.

Warning issued on 'airplane' pyramid scheme

Calls coming into the attorney general's office indicate that the "Airplane game" which was rampant in north and central Mississippi last fall is again appearing in the state.

"Make no mistake; this is an illegal activity under state laws which make pyramid schemes misdemeanors," Attorney General Ed Pittman said. "Anyone selling or attempting to sell a 'ticket' in the airplane is subject to arrest, with penalties of up to six months in jail and a $500 fine."

The airplane or pilot game works on the typical pyramid pattern. There is a pilot, two co-pilots, four crew members and eight passengers.

The passengers pay a certain amount of money for their "tickets" with all the money going to the pilot. He then retires or "flies off" and everyone moves up one notch. Passengers make money from the ticket money of other passengers when they have climbed up to pilot.

"We are encouraging local law enforcement officers and agencies to pursue their investigations of this scheme and to make arrests wherever possible," Pittman said.

"While some few people may make money from the airplane, many more people are going to be taken for a ride."

Because of the mathematical progression of this scheme, the market soon becomes flooded and later participants are left holding the bag, so to speak.

In Coastal Gardens

John E. Davis
Area Horticulture Specialist, MCES
Want to evoke "oohs" and "aahs" from your house plants when friends and family visit? Then try something different this year - the hypoestes.

This unique plant has leaves of dark green liberally colored with bright pink blotches and is truly something different and eye catching.

Formerly known as the polka dot plant, there is now a new variety called "Pink Splash" which is pinker as well as splashier.

To top it off, hypoestes "Pink Splash" is extremely easy to grow. A dwarf plant with heavy branching from the base to keep it looking full, "Pink Splash" grows to 6-8 inches in a four or six inch pot.

Set it in diffused or filtered bright light in a warm room which is kept at 70 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and 65 degrees at night. Color intensifies with brighter light, but do not place this plant in full sun.

Potting media should be very rich and kept evenly moist. Don't fertilize hypoestes, and pinch plants to prevent legginess.

"Pink Splash" hypoestes is at its happiest in high humidity, and so does very well in a terrarium. Otherwise, mist daily or use a humidifier.

For a change of pace, place hypoestes outside in the summer. It will bloom with lilac flowers in late summer, but is best used as a unique potted plant on the patio, steps or along the garden path. Light shade is best. Indoors or outside, you'll make a splash with "Pink Splash".

House endorses VA housing reforms

WASHINGTON—The House has approved a comprehensive housing reform package designed to enable veterans to avoid default on their home loans. The reforms are expected to reduce the cost of such defaults to the Federal government and to enable veterans to purchase higher-priced homes.

"This bill is going to make significant improvements in our efforts to assist veterans in obtaining—and keeping—quality, affordable housing," said Rep. Marcy Kaptur (D-OH), Chairwoman of the Veterans' Affairs Subcommittee on Housing and Memorial Affairs and author of the legislation.

"It carefully preserves the VA Home Loan Guaranty program's basic intent, offers creative approaches to some of its present-day problems, and sets it on a sound footing for meeting veterans' future needs."

Currently, the Veterans Administration agrees to pay a lender 60 percent of the loan amount, up to $27,500, should a borrower default. Under H.R. 2672, the bill approved today, the guaranty would be 40 percent, up to $40,000.

With a 40 percent rather than 60 percent guaranty, liabilities would be reduced for veterans who receive small to moderate home loans and who default. Kaptur noted that a 40 percent guaranty would continue to provide better credit protection for the lender than is currently available under conventional loans. By increasing the maximum guaranty, H.R. 2672 would make larger home loans more attractive to potential lenders.

Concerns about the rising number of foreclosures prompted the development of a provision in the bill that would authorize a one-time loan of up to $8,400 to eligible veterans who are six months or more delinquent on their mortgages through no fault of their own. H.R. 2672 also would require the VA to provide more effective servicing when a loan goes into default and to advise veterans of alternatives to foreclosure that may be available.

"Solid underwriting policies are important to the integrity of the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program and to the well-being of the home-buying veteran, but good sense tells us that it has to go beyond that. You can't just leave the veteran hanging, wondering what his options are should he start having financial problems," said Veterans Affairs Committee Chairman G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery (D-MS).

Kaptur agrees. "We must follow through with increased efforts at servicing these loans and with counseling that will help delinquent veterans work their way out of financial difficulties. The VA, the veteran and the taxpayer all benefit if we help a veteran keep his home," she said.

H.R. 2672: —extends for two years the one percent funding fee a veteran pays to receive a VA home loan guaranty. The VA uses the fee to help pay claims;

—authorizes additional loans so that prospective purchasers may rehabilitate properties acquired from the VA;

—authorizes discounts to groups who would use VA properties to assist unemployed and homeless veterans;

—alters residency requirements to allow homeowners who do not reside in the home (such as military personnel who are stationed elsewhere) to refinance their loans;

—and, under certain conditions, frees a veteran from liability if his loan is assumed and the purchaser meets credit underwriting requirements. This would only apply to loans made after the bill is enacted; it would not be retroactive. Since the inception of the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program in 1944, more than 12 million veterans have received VA-backed mortgage assistance totaling over $250 billion. To date, more than 7.5 million of these loans totaling $102.7 billion have been repaid.

The House approved a second bill, H.R. 2957, that would make improvements in the National Cemetery System.

Safety City set for North Shore Square Aug. 26-30

Where's A policeman when you need one?

Children can learn the answer to this and other safety questions when they visit the Safety City miniature community that will be on display at North Shore Square scheduled for Aug. 26-30.

The hands-on exhibit was produced by Encyclopaedia Britannica, USA (EBUSA), a division of Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. and will be located in the Maison Blanche Court.

Included in the mock town is a fire station, police station, hospital, movie theatre, streets, sidewalks and traffic signs.

Children can travel through the community in organized tours at 10:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and from noon through 4 p.m. on Sunday.

The guide will describe the importance of observing traffic signals and other safety precautions, as well as how to obtain help from police or firemen in an emergency.

Following the tour, the children will receive safety certificates to indicate a successful completion of the "safety course."

The 15-minute tour is aimed at children between the ages of three and twelve. It is intended to teach basic safety patterns in the community. Call the North Shore Square mall office at 646-0661 to schedule your tour!

Education is catalyst for survival

Dr. Lella Gaston Rhodes, dean of libraries at Jackson State University, told nearly 300 graduates during the 110th Summer Commencement Exercises on Saturday, Aug. 1, that the use of mind power beyond the printed page will provide them a catalyst for survival as they become agents to affect change.

"Education makes one aware of the immensity of human knowledge, the immensity of human problems and the immensity of things unknown," Rhodes said. "I applaud you for your pursuit of academic excellence, but you must go beyond the printed page."

Quoting Abraham Flexner, a noted authority on medical education, Dr. Rhodes said, "Without ideals, without efforts, without scholarship, without philosophical continuity, there is no such thing as education."

Dr. Rhodes appealed to the graduates to refute the assertion that colleges and universities are producing inferior products. "You must prove that your academic pursuits here have made a difference...have prepared you now to go beyond the printed page—to become involved in the signs of the time—hunger, health care for the elderly, illiteracy, black on black crime," she said.

Dr. Rhodes began her career as a library assistant at JSU in 1945 before being named librarian at Jim Hill High School in 1953. She returned to JSU in 1957 as associate head librarian, assuming her current post in 1983.

She is the author of "Jackson State University: The First Hundred Years, 1877-1877," a history of the university.

A native of Jackson, Dr. Rhodes received her bachelor's degree from JSU, her master's degree from Atlanta University and the specialist and doctoral degrees from Florida State University.

In 1975, she became the first black and only woman in Mississippi to receive a doctor's degree in library science.

Stress: How It Affects The Way You Look

Stress can cause changes in your appearance. Fortunately, there are things you can do to keep looking your best when things get hectic.

When you are under stress, one of the first places it can show up is in your hair. It will often become dry, brittle, dull-looking, limp, even begin to fall out. If fallen hairs are long, they're not just breaking off, they're falling out from the root. Your hair is telling you that it needs attention and a change in your regular haircare routine.

Here are a few tips that may solve the problem from the experts at Alberto-Culver who have been formulating haircare products for over 30 years:

- Proper nutrition during times of stress is vital. Hair is a product of what you eat. Vitamin B complex, zinc, magnesium, Vitamin C and plenty of protein and calcium are musts for healthy hair.
- Give your hair a rest from mousses, or try one of the new alcohol-free products.
- If you normally use damaging, heated, styling tools such as hot rollers or, you blow-dry hair daily, stop. Let hair air dry and use one of the more gentle styling products.

Conditioning stressed-out, dry hair prevents it from breaking when wet combing.

- Use a shampoo that is especially gentle to hair. Wash hair in a straight, downward direction, massaging scalp gently with your fingertips.

- Condition with a product such as Alberto Natural Silk Conditioner to prevent hair from breaking while wet combing, and to replace moisture. The conditioner's silk fibers give hair new strength, shine and the feeling of silk.
- If you only have time and energy to do one thing for your stressed-out hair, try using a product such as VO5 Conditioning Hairdressing every day. It contains the five vital oils found in hair and can do double duty: by nourishing hair back to health, it will make it more manageable, shinier and less likely to break off — one less thing to get stressed about.

BRINGING UP BABY

Sweeteners in Baby Food

Q: Are sweeteners used in commercially-prepared baby foods? I want to limit the sugar in my baby's diet, and I'm also concerned about artificial sweeteners.

A: Many parents share your concerns. In response to consumer preference, sugar is not added to many varieties of baby foods. In some Gerber varieties (only 30 of 177), small amounts of sugar are added to offset the natural fruit tartness or to ensure a good-tasting dessert. Parents who wish to limit the amount of sugar in their baby's diet can choose foods made without sugar by reading the labels of ingredients listed on the labels of baby food.

Only natural sources of sugar, such as sugar cane or sugar beets, are used in selected Gerber fruits and desserts. Consistent with our concern for infant nutrition, artificial sweeteners are not used in Gerber baby foods. Natural sugar sources are preferred over other sweeteners such as corn syrup, because they are the least likely to cause food sensitivities in infants.

Infants with allergies to corn may be sensitive to foods sweetened with corn syrup, which is a liquid sugar made from corn starch. If your baby is among those with a sensitivity to corn, you will want to check the baby food labels to be sure corn syrup is not included.

Pass schools to open Thursday, Aug. 27

LeRoy Lizana, superintendent of Pass Christian Public School District, reports new students enrolling in grades K-4 may report for registration at the Delisle Elementary or Pass Christian Elementary Schools on any day, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

New students in grades 5-8 should report to Pass Christian Middle and grades 9-12 to Pass Christian High School during the same hours.

Lizana noted that parents or guardians must accompany the students to the schools for registration. All students being presented for enrollment must have an official certified birth certificate bearing a state file number.

State law requires that all students enrolling in first grade must be six years of age on or before Sept. 1, 1987. Kindergarten enrollees must be five before Sept. 1, 1987.

In addition to the birth certificate, all students must have a health certificate that was issued by the county health department or a physician. The health certificate will certify that the child is free of communicable diseases.

Those students who have a (blue card) immunization record on file in the school office will not be issued new cards by the health department for the 1987-88 school term. Parents are urged to check the school offices prior to the opening date to ascertain if their child's record is on file.

The first day for the 1987-88 school term will be Thursday, Aug. 27. Lizana indicated that the regular class schedules will be observed on that day. All district cafeterias will be operating and the school buses will operate to transport all students who live one mile or more from the attendance center where enrolled.

Parents desiring additional information relative to the opening of school should contact the school office. All administrative personnel are on duty.

The 1987-88 school calendar for the Pass Christian Schools begins on Aug. 27, and ends on May 30, 1988. The calendar has 175 teaching days. The school year is divided into four academic nine week terms.

Semester examinations are scheduled for Jan. 12, 14, 15, and final examinations are scheduled for May 26, 27, 30.

The last working day for teachers is June 1, 1988.

The school district will observe the following holiday schedule: Sept. 7, Labor Day; Nov. 26, Thanksgiving; Dec. 21-23, Christmas; Jan. 1, New Years; Feb. 15-16, Mardi Gras; March 28-31, Spring Holidays; and April 1, Good Friday.

The school district has scheduled five district-wide staff development days for teachers throughout the school year with classes to be dismissed on Nov. 25, Jan. 18, and Feb. 17.

School site leadership to be year's emphasis

RESTON, VA.—America can look forward this year to the golden spike being "hammered into the educational improvement movement," according to the chief executive officer of the nation's largest school administration group.

"For five years our nation has worked toward making its schools better," reports Scott Thomson, executive director, National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

"This year the final step will be implemented—focusing upon leadership at the school site."

Since "A Nation at Risk" was issued in 1982, America's schools have taken progressive steps toward school improvement, according to Thomson.

"This has been a process of evolution," he indicated. "During the first year we had a period of rhetoric—when everyone had answers to the challenges facing schools. Then the governors and state legislatures entered the picture passing greater requirements for students, compensations for teachers, and mandates for educators."

The next step in this evolution was to focus not in rhetoric or mandates, but people.

"People began asking how do you really make education better?" said Thomson. "The answer was people and the focus last year was upon teachers. Now we are seeing that having good teachers isn't enough. We must also have effective leaders—principals who are schooled in and practice modern management techniques."

Thomson predicts that the golden spike will be inserted into school improvement this year as emphasis is placed upon the school principalship.

"We need to improve preparation programs of principals in our colleges and universities, provide greater training in modern management for principals, and assure that high quality professionals are placed in these positions."

Thomson cites several new thrusts which point toward the evolution of focusing upon leadership, including the Educational Commission of the States new report on school leadership and the U.S. Education Department's plan to conduct 12 weeks of seminars on school leadership to determine the department's agenda for strengthening leadership.

"Foundations are also making a renewed, major commitment to support school leadership, and this will continue in the coming year," he predicted.

He specifically cited the Atlantic Richfield and Matsushita Foundations and the Carnegie Corporation of New York which are funding the newly-created NASSP Principals Leadership Center, and the Danforth and Kellogg Foundation, which are behind NASSP's Assessment Center Project.

"In the coming year we will see a unique intersection in the evolution of school improvement," said Thomson.

"People are recognizing the importance of quality education to our way of life. They are also seeing that principals are the key to turning around schools."

"Providing the resources to train, top school principals comes at a time when we will soon need more high quality principals. Within five years, we'll need to replace one-third of the principals in many states due to retirements. But with a renewed understanding of the importance of school principals and a public commitment to make our schools as strong as they possibly can be, we'll meet that challenge."

HELLO! I'm The Sea Coast Echo. Most folks know me by my nick-name "The ECHO". (Echo - that's mountain talk for hot air that bounces back).

I've been hanging around these parts, Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Hancock County for quite a long time. I am 96-years-old this year.

I've visited with most all of you in your home from time to time and some of you twice a week. Can't call all of your names, but I know most of you from the touch of your hands and that hungry look in your eyes.

See my friends, I'm your local news newspaper. My visiting days are Thursday and Sunday. I bring vital information and advertising of high import to every citizen in Hancock County, grown-ups and little tots alike.

I am a messenger boy for the business folks. They hire me to do the job of the town crier (that's a poor fella who used to run around the streets exercising his vocal chords, screaming out the daily news for all he was worth). My Bosses make it easy for me. They make sure that I am going to hang around for a while, so they smear me up with a bunch, and I mean a bunch of all those different colors. I really rub off on you! Takes me a while to get primed, but I get on my soapbox twice a week to gently tell you 'bout what's been going on around town. Then I bring you the best prices on vittles, soda pop, clothes, other folks' junk (some-a-us calls them treasures), new-fangled eating called hamburgers (ain't found no ham in the fust one) and pizza pies (a big flapjack with a big glob of goo and baloney on top), and just a whole lotta other things that you just gotta have. Shucks, they're nice to have even if you don't gotta have 'em.

Don't cost much to get me to come around your house. All you gotta do is send my Big Boss 16 of those green bills with President Washington's pitcher on it and I'll come visiting you two times a week real soon.

Seriously folks, SUBSCRIBE TODAY! If you live in my home delivery area, I'll be there every Thursday and Sunday morning. For those outside the area in Hancock County, Pass Christian, Long Beach, Perkinston, and Picayune, I'll usually be there on Thursday and Monday with your U. S. Mail.

You can't beat this deal anywhere in town. For just $16.00 you get 102 issues of The ECHO. That's only 15.69 cents a copy. Best deal in town!

Call 467-5474 and order today!

Better yet, clip the coupon and send it in along with your check or money order for $16.00 to:
